EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

Queen Victoria is said to be glad that Gladstone resigned.

The boom to make Hon. John Patton the nominee for State Treasurer is swelling in volume.

The Governor should not vent his rage on the hard-worked employes of the Senate and House.

Miss Cleveland's book promises to sell rapidly if the vexed question as to whether her portrait shall apin it can ever be settled.

The effort to pass the Congressional Apportionment bill over the Governor's veto was defeated in the House by lack of five votes.

The Salvation Army and the Mormons have adopted resolutions to invade Mexico. We hope they will all go with the invading army.

The $2,000,000 paid in taxes by the saloon keepers in Ohio, under the Scott liquor law, will not have to be refunded, the Supreme Court having decided otherwise.

Mexico has only $4000 in her treasury, but perhaps it is better than if she had as many millions. She will have no revolutions as long as she carries so little surplus.

Master Bertie Shelley is the name of a Philadelphia 13-year old lad who is said to be one of the most marvelous violin performers that the world has ever known.

Gladstone may be overthrown, but the impression seems to be going around the world that he is several hundred per cent greater in his fall than the opposition that triumphed.

A western postmaster says that he has been reported as an offensive partisan because he has refused to lick stamps for the young women who send letters through his office.

Since Rev. Henry Ward Beecher began his evolution sermons, Rev. Joe Furey has resigned from the ministry of the Reformed church and will probably start out to help Brother Hennery evolute.

The shabby treatment General Bragg has received from the Administration is believed to be due to Postmaster-general Vilas' influence, who fears Bragg may oppose his senatorial aspirations.

The Michigan Greenbackers, who nearly gave that state's electoral vote to Cleveland and Butler, are reported to be dissatisfied with the distribution of the federal patronage, and to be threatening revenge at the next election.

Mr. Gladstone being out of office would be a good idea for Senator Edmunds to persuade him to visit the United States. We might give the great Liberal leader a reception that would induce him to settle down here and grow up with the country.

The revival of religion still continues at Atlanta. Up to Saturday, $76,678 67 had been secured towards a Y. M. C. A. building. All this money has been raised without a subscription paper. They are now about to circulate such a paper, asking for $5,000 in one dollar pledges. The ladies have raised $8,000 to be applied to something special in connection with the building.

The seventeen-year locusts do not appear in all sections of the country; they come up in spots merely. According to a map in Harper's Weekly, showing the locust belt, northern New York, central Massachusetts and Vermont have each a good crop of them, while the whole of southern Pennsylvania, with a belt extending southward through Virginia and North Carolina shows the largest locust area on the map.

A Grand Legislative Session.

The Legislature adjourned last week. It was the most important session of the Legislature ever known in respect to the important measures passed, and the Republican party can well go before the country on the record it furnishes. We give a few of its acts. For one alone it deserves the highest praise, since by it the revenues of the State were increased $1,500,000 a year, while, at the same time the tax on moneyed capital was reduced 25 per cent and the tax on manufacturing corporations--a tax which manufacturing Pennsylvania stood almost alone among the states in levying—was repealed. Had the Legislature failed to pass this revenue bill the responsible majority would have deserved all the censure that could well be heaped upon them. Should the Governor veto it, as he is said to contemplate, on account of the repeal of the tax on manufacturing corporations which it contains, he will raise a political hurricane, before which he and his party will be swept as leaves. Such a veto would be equivalent to saddling three times the cost of an extra session upon the State. Under a recent decision of the Supreme Court, bonds, the tax on which the issuing carporations had expected to pay, could have largely evaded taxation entirely; while on those which were assessed, the tax must have been paid by individual holders. The decision was worth $81,000 a year to the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company alone. Naturally, such companies were opposed to the passage of this bill, but the responsible majority felt that the question could not be trifled with, and the stern fact was hammered into them repeatedly by Boyer. Another important revenue act is the repeal of the petty office tax upon foreign corporations. The Bullitt bill, applying to Philadelphia, has been pending in one form or another for ten years, and its enactment is important.

Another of the acts is that regulating the incorporation of natural gas companies. This legalization of a new and tremendous business saves the iron and glass industries of Pennsylvania and ends the scare that Southern furnaces might snatch the steel trade from the Keystone State. It will cut down largely the cost of making both steel and glass; and it has been absolutely ascertained that the quality of the glass in whose manufacture natural gas is used is superior to any in the world.

As to apportionment, that vexed question which has been discussed up hill and down hill, through every county in the State since 1880, the Republicans of this Legislature did their best. They framed a Congressional bill, which the Governor could find no better reason to veto than partisan ones. The Governor made the passage of the bill a party question, and his party, aided by a few recreant Republicans in the House, must accept the responsibility of its defeat. A good bill was sent to the Governor, but not their leadership nor the merits of the bill could avail against the individual selfishness of dissatisfied members.

The Legislature has not affected the laws regarding the sale of liquor either by wholesale or retail. High license failed in the House, simply because the cause lacked a competent leader. The friends of the principle, which never became a party question, were at all times a majority of the House: but there was no man among them who could unite them upon any one proposition. But, although the High License bill fell, the cause of temperance and morality must be greatly aided by Harlan's bill, compelling the instruction of children in the public schools as to the physical effect upon their bodies of the use intoxicants. This measure commonly known as the "Physiology and Hygiene bill," has been enacted in several other states at the instance of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Measures in the interest of health and for the greater safety of life and limb are the one forbidding the adulteration of food and milk; forbidding the manufacture of oleomargarine (the constitutionality of which is still to be tested); the two acts regulating fire-escapes, in-doors and out, and forbidding the manufacture and sale of the deadly toy pistol. From this general change in the interests of health and morality the skating rinks and the slugging match have escaped scot free.

The old soldier has been well treated during the session. The Legislature has said, despite the Governor's veto, that he must be buried by the county where he dies, at an expense of $35, besides being honored with a $15 headstone. The destitute children he leaves behind are to be admitted to the soldiers' orphan schools. The Soldiers' Home at Erie has been provided for, and another act is to enable soldiers and sailors to recover their commissions and to provide a penalty for withholding them.

A Calamity for England.

When the Gladstone Government was defeated in England the other day that defeat was one of the worst calamities that has occurred to the country for a long time. Through these trying and unfortunate times, Gladstone has done more and shown himself able to do more for his country than any other man could do. He has averted for the time, as he only perhaps could avert in future, a war with a semi-civilized nation (Russia) which would have seriously affected the growth of trade and civilization throughout the world.

But the Gladstone government, being forced in honor to retire for the present, can better afford to do so than the country can afford to lose it. In the immediate question on which it was defeated—putting tax on beer instead of tea and coffee—it was unmistakably right and the majority wrong. We much mistake if the allied Conservatives and Parnellites have not overreached themselves and if their ill-judged actions do not bring down upon them the vengeance of the people in the approaching elections.

Gladstone has a right to the title, "the Grand Old Man." There is absolutely no one who can take his place. But we believe he will give the opposition an opportunity to try it and blunder for awhile, and then the country will turn to him more eagerly than ever before.

The toy pistol must henceforth be silent in Pennsylvania, unless the Governor in his wisdom shall see fit to veto the bill prohibiting the manufacture and sale of toy deadly weapons, which has passed both branches of the Legislature. The toy pistol has proved itself a full fledged deadly weapon, and it is well described as such by the bill. In spite of the many deaths from lockjaw caused by slight wounds made by the fulminate of mercury, which is the chief element of the explosive caps or cartridges used in these pistols, parents still allow their use and dealers sell them indiscriminately to all children applying for them. It is quite time these dangerous toys were put under the ban of the law, and we hope their sale hereafter in Pennsylvania will be punished as it deserves.

The killing of 54 persons and the maiming of more than a hundred by the fall of a massive stone staircase in France, on Thursday, furnishes an instance of the fatal disregard for security in the construction of buildings of which we have had several startling examples of late. One might suppose that such structures were intended to stand in the moon, where the force of gravitation is comparatively slight, and where the inhabitants being furnished with wings, as writers of lunar romances assert, could the more readily escape. Certainly they are not fit for a planet endowed with the attractive power of the earth.

Beecher's Evolution.

The Philadelphia Call has some very sensible remarks on Henry Ward Beecher's three recent sermons on "Evolution" which we copy as follows:

The first had some elements of strength, but embraced no views that were essentially new. The fact that the human race has progressed from a low to a higher plane; that its history has been one of progress, and that the crude ideas and superstitious notions of early ages have yielded to the clearer light of modern times, might have been stated without calling it evolution. The facts were commonplace and no intelligent person disputes them. And the forecast of the future, in which he thinks man will advance vastly beyond his present attainments is also readily accepted. But it is rather a misnomer to call all this evolution. The plainer, simpler term progress would seem to better express it.

In his second sermon he sought to make out that God is an aggregation of such attributes and virtues as we can cluster together and individualize in a Deity. Thus the god of the Christian world to-day is a higher, purer, grander being than the same God was in the early ages. In other words, under this theory, we evolve the divinity we worship. This is undoubtedly evolution, but of a sort not generally believed in. The general impression is that God originally possessed all the attributes, virtues and powers he now does. The human race has reached a larger, deeper insight into these qualities and understands them more intelligently and perfectly; but all this does not add to the excellences of divinity. The Beecher idea is that we evolve, or construct God. The prevailing idea is that he is self-created, and was perfect at the outset.

His sermon on Sunday, June 7, was on the inspiration of the Scripture. The report is quite cloudy and may do him injustice, but he appears to apply the same theory to inspiration that he does to divinity. He thinks men wrote and acted as they were moved by the divine spirit, but the spirit only acted on such intelligence as it had to deal with, and so the outcome was less distinct and real in one age than in another. This is a curious sort of evolution. It really clothes with strong verbiage ideas not at all novel, or even original. It hardly looks as yet as if Mr. Beecher was destined to become a leader in the new theology. Evolution, crimped and narrowed as he makes it, is not even a respectable scare crow.

At the Primaries.

Again a solemn and impressive duty devolves upon the Republicans of Centre county. The chairman of the Republican county committee has issued a call for a convention to elect delegates to the State Convention on the 8th of July, and appointed a time for primary elections to choose delegates to that body.

While Pensylvania was largely Republican for Blaine there have been times not long ago when the State gave a vote against Republican candidates. This teaches the party always to exert care in the selection of candidates and we believe that even in the face of an 81,000 majority vigilance and consistency are the requirements.

The result of the work of the county committee rests on the people because they choose and vote for delegates to that convention. It is the duty of voters to choose men who will be controlled in the convention by the best interests of the people.

Old Mr. Gladstone can hardly be disconsolate as he sits back quietly resting from the turbulent labors he has waded through for some months and observes the squirming of the factions whose union threw him out, in their vain efforts to combine in a Ministry that can command a majority of the Commons.

The shape the contest between the Legislature and the Governor has taken is illustrative of a very wide divergance of opinion. He vetoed at the end of the last session certain appropriations for extra services rendered by subordinate employes about the Legislature, on the ground that there was no law under which they could be paid. The Legislature reappropriated these sums at this session, believing they could and ought to be paid. The Governor, still adhering to his opinion, vetoed them again. In this he acted clearly within his constitutional power and no exception can be taken to the propriety of his act. But the Legislature, as clearly within its rightful powers, passed the measure over his veto, That makes it the law. This is followed, however, by a notice served upon the Auditor General and State Treasurer, not to obey that law, on pain of proceedings against them in the courts. Is that as clearly within his province?

Ex-Mayor Tompkins, of Sing Sing, New York, has been convicted of profanity on the public highway, and is so mad about it, that he is in fair way of giving ground for several other convictions, before closing his remarks on the subject. He says with the strongest kind of emphasis that he will carry the case up to and clear through the Supreme Court of the United States before he pays his fine, and then he won't. It is aggravating, to have made a fool of himself and been fined for it. But swearing won't mend it. Since the above was written Tompkins has been declared not guilty.

Frank Hurd was beaten at the last Congressional election, but that makes no difference. The House will have a Democratic majority and they can seat whom they please. The free traders will need Frank's help, so he proposes to contest the seat of Romeis who defeated him before the people, and have his party reverse the people's verdict. Of course he will succeed, as the practice of the Democrats in the last Congress in like cases demonstrates.

The Boston Post, referring to the appointment of young Mr. Beecher to a customs collectorship in the Northwest, observes: "Our esteemed allies (the Mugwumps) are getting their full share of the offices." This is probably a correct estimate. Postmaster Pearson and Collector Beecher fully repay the Democratic obligation to the Mugwumps.

The New York World's Bartholdi Pedestal Fund has nearly reached the sum of seventy thousand dollars, and there are new names to the subscription of $250 apiece which it is proposed shall number one hundred The French steamer Isere, with the statue on board, is expected to arrive in a day or two, and the New Yorkers ought to add to the glory of her reception by completing the sum required for the pedestal.

John Bright's reported illness will cause much sorrow in the United States. He is a Liberal in politics, a peace man as becomes a good Friend, and in our civil war he was one of the few great Englishmen who gave his sympathy to the cause of the Union. He is in his seventy-fourth year, and an illness at that age is sure to cause uneasiness.

The Democrats who rejoice over the defeat of the apportionment bill because it was "unfair" to their party must consequently regard the present apportionment as not unfair, With a Republican Governor and a Republican Legislature it might be well to give them a taste of Ohio, Indiana, or Southern Democratic apportionment.

Secretary Bayard has got back from his Western excursion, and is reported to be happy and cheerful. His exuberance is generally attributed to his having met in Missouri so many men whose uncles were well acquainted with his father.

United States sub-Treasuries are situated at Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, New York, New Orleans, Philadelphia, St. Louis and San Francisco.

Many English clergymen are suffering from loss in the revenue of their parishes. In four benefices in one archdeaconry in the diocese of Peterborough, the aggregate income has fallen from $10,000 to $1,000.

The discoveries of gold, lead, phosphates, iron, etc., in various counties of Florida, some of her papers think, will yet make her orange groves a secondary consideration as avenues of State and private wealth.

Some peat moss which was recently exhumed near Dumfries, Scotland, was found to contain seeds of plants dating from prehistoric times. They were planted and at once began to germinate after a sleep of ages.

In the language of flowers a moss rosebud is a confession of love; a red rosebud implies that the giver considers the recipient young and beautiful, and if she returns a white rosebud she declares that she is too young to love.

Last years' income of the Girard estate in Philadelphia was $950,000. Its real estate alone is valued at $7,346,000, besides the college building and grounds. The collieriers of the estate produce 1,400,000 tons of coal during the year.

H. B. Philips, of Big Rapids, Pa., celebrated his marriage recently by presenting to his bride his teething ring, the first lock of hair cut from his head and the first tooth he cut, and receiving in exchange one-half in a prosperous grocery store.

At a recent wedding in Boston the officiating clergyman not only omitted the "obey" from the bride's response, but left out the clause "for richer, for poorer," and failed to add the sacramental sentence, "Whom God hath joined together, let no man put asunder."

When Alexander the Great had conquered Porus, King of India, he took a great elephant which had fought valiantly for the king, and dedicated him to the sun, and let him go with this inscription: "Alexander, son of Jupiter, dedicated Ajax to the sun." The elephant was found with this inscription 350 years after.

Five hundreds tons of fish are required daily to supply London. A ton of fish being equal to 28 sheep, 500 tons represent the almost incredible number of 14,000 sheep as equivalent to the amount of fish food consumed daily by the people of that city. Taking the supply of the city as one-third of that of the kingdom, the fish used in England in a year equal 12,500,000 sheep.

Poetry.

DE PROFUNDIS.

There's a place, so the sages have said,
  Where Darkness and horror abide,
And where Light from the Living has fled,
  And Anguish is bound to their side.
Where, as floods that sweep through the vales
  The red tide of agony rolls,
Till the dark cheek of Destiny pales
  At the woe of such crime-stricken souls.

Though the wing of the lightning should sweep
  This darkness so ghostly and wierd,
'Twould be ages before in the deep
  The flash of its pinions appeared.
'Tis but mocking for Mercy to wait,
  Or Hope to paint visions of rest,
For the angel who sits by the gate
  Has hidden the key in his breast.

But I fancy sometimes in the gloom,
  The eyes that are tearless and red,
In the depths of the valley of Doom,
  A star can be seen overhead.
In the ebon-hued dome of the night,
  Half hid by the shadows of woe,
As it shivers its lances of light
  On Darkness that deepens below.

Down from battlements, crested with light,
  That blaze both with jewels and gold,
Rolling back the deep billows of night,
  As waves from the sea cliff are rolled,
There are some who with pitying eye
  Are weighing sin's horrible cost,
With affection that never can die,
  They silently weep for the lost.

Hold a lamp o'er the sunless abyss
  That shines on the brow of the night,
Never starbeam so changeless as this,
  So crystal and clear in its light;
'Tis a voice from the depth of the soul,
  Love's mute, irresistible plea
Floating out on the billows that roll
  On Death's indescribable sea.

There is Something as deathless as God,
  On earth and in Heaven above;
Though it silently bows to the rod,
  Immortal forever is LOVE;
As she kneels at the Emerald Throne,
  Or comforts the sad and oppressed,
For each pang, or each passionate moan,
  An echo she finds in her breast.

Though the splendor of Temple and Crown
  Be ever her fortunate part,
Still forever through tears she looks down
  On those who once lived in her heart,
And I fancy sometimes in the gloom,
  To eyes that are tearless and red,
In the depths of the valley of Doom,
  A star can be seen overhead.

Like a lamp o'er the sunless abyss
  It shines on the brow of the night;
Never starbeam so changeless as this,
  So crystal and clear in its light.
'Tis a voice from the depth of the soul,
  Love's mute, irresistible plea,
Floating out on the billows that roll
  On Death's indescribable sea.

W. S. WILSON.

Altoona, Pa., June 5, 1885.

VIOLET.

Thy breath is sweeter than the air
  That steals from flowers all dewy wet;
And sweeter than the ripest pear
  Thou pouting lips, sweet Violet.

Thy mien is modest as the eve
  With but a single star-beam set,
When unseen fingers deftly weave
  Her robe of night, my Violet.

Thy spirit, sinless as the dove,
  Still shrinks at wrong, nor can forget
'Mid earthly guile its birth above;
  Thy life is love, dear Violet.

Thou'rt like that fair and fragrant flower
  That on the brow of Spring is set,
To deck the young year's gayest hour,
  Sweet, modest, sinless Violet.

Our Story Teller.

Behind the Curtain.

"It's the luckiest thing in the world, happening as it does just now," thought Mr. Adrian Barr. "Five hundred dollars will just buy that partnership with Dowkins & Co.; and, once fairly started in the world, there's no reason in the world why I shouldn't go on swimmingly. And I could marry Arline to-morrow, if I please. She has waited for me long enough, bless her dear little heart!"

As these thoughts floated through Mr. Barr's mind, leaning back in the snuggest corner of the railway car, there also came to him a pleasant sense of elated merit. Of course Arline Atwood was a darling—of course she clung to him through everything, but at the same time he could not help feeling conscious that many a man, situated just as he was, would look higher in the matrimonial market than Parson Atwood's portionless daughter. There was old Dowkins' niece, neither young nor beautiful that is true, but certain of inheriting a fortune; there was Miss Seraphine Prout, the music teacher, who had five thousand dollars of her own in the village Gas Light Company, there was the widow Buckley who, if report was true, was not averse to a husband somewhat younger than herself. It was not every man who would be true to a sweetheart under such circumstances as these, reflected Mr. Barr.

About old Aunt Adriana, whose bequest to the family of Barr formed the foundation stone of this castle in the air, Mr. Barr never troubled himself at all. Wasn't she seventy odd years old? Oughtn't old people expect to die? What business had they cumbering the earth that ought of right to belong to their youngers! She ought to have vacated the stage long ago, and left her savings to those who had a right to them.

So the train thundered along, crossing the dreary swamp meadows on a slender iron support, and dashing like a firey arrow through the very heart of the dim old pine forests, until at last the brakeman shouted, "Journalville!" and they came to a stop.

Mr. Barr stepped out. After six months' absence from his native village it was surprising how dwarfed and insignificant it appeared to him. The round dome of the Town Hall certainly must have shrunk. Dr. Brooke's church was not much more than a child's wooden toy—and as for the market place, Mr. Barr could not restrain a contemptuous smile, as he passed it.

"Of course I shall take Arline to the city," thought he. "No one could expect a man of moderate ideas to vegetate in a place like this."

But as he turned out of the main thoroughfare and came up Maple street he stopped short. Did his vision deceive him? or had the end of the maternal residence actually blossomed into a double bay window? Had a south wing been added to the house? Was that a new porch up which the straggling trails of the old trumpet vine were so carefully trained?

Adrian Barr's face lost its complacency,—the angry color mounted to his face. Involuntarily he clinched his hands.

"If my mother has taken that money and squandered it on these petty repairs to another man's house," he muttered, "I will never forgive her."

He opened the door and dashed angrily into the house. Kate, his pretty sister, sprung from her seat at the piano, and ran to meet him.

"Well, Adrian," she said, with a low courtesy, and eyes dancing with exultation, "what do yeu think of our new improvements? Mamma, come quick, here is Adrian."

Mrs. Barr hurried joyfully into the vestibule—a comely matron in a well worn black silk gown, with her luxuriant brown hair tucked away under a widow's cap, and a white apron tied around her waist. Tears of joy were in her still sparkling eyes, as she clasped both arms round her tall son.

"Oh, Adrian, my boy," she exclaimed, "I thought you never would be here!"

But, instead of returning her affectionate embrace, Adrian pushed her roughly away.

"Mother," said he, sharply, "what does all this mean?" And as he spoke he looked impatiently around at the new bay-windows and the corniced ceiling.

"Don't you like it, Adrian?" said Mrs. Barr, with a blank face. "We thought you would have been so pleased!"

"Pleased!" he echoed, through his set teeth. "Of all fools, I believe women are the worst."

"Adrian!"

"What fiend can have possessed you?" went on the young man in accents of scarcely smothered rage. "Why couldn't you have waited and consulted with me? What business had you to make yourself ridiculous by such a piece of folly as this?"

"But, Adrian——" faintly began his mother.

"Pray be silent," interrupted Mr. Barr. "I wish to hear no excuse or justification. You have ruined me with your idiotic vanity! I hope that you are contented now."

"Adrian!" cried Kate, with a flushed face, "you shall not speak to mamma in that way!"

"Will you be so good as to mind your own business?" retorted her brother, turning short around upon her. "I will speak to whom I please, and in what manner I please. And no woman alive shall dictate to me!"

"But what have we done?" faltered poor Mrs. Barr, half crying. "How have we offended you, dear Adrian?"

"You have squandered that old woman's money in this ridiculous absurdity!" shouted her son, staring angrily around him. "I declare I could kick my foot through that stained glass door in sheer despair at your outrageous folly!"

"Aunt Adrian's money, do you mean?" gasped Mrs. Barr.

"Aunt Adrian's money!" he mimicked, furiously. "Why, whose else money should I mean? Are we in the habit of having money rattle down around our ears every day in the week?"

"For shame, Adrian!" cried indignant Kate. "Do you forget that you are addressing your mother? Are these the fine, polished manners that you have brought home from the city? As for Aunt Adriana's money, we haven't touched it at all, though we have quite as much right to it as you, seing that it was left to be divided equally among the whole family. It is lying in the bank just where it always has lain."

"The—then," stammered Mr. Barr, stumbling over the words in his eagerness, "where did you get the means to build out the new south wing?"

"The landlord built it," said Kate. "We have wanted it for some time, and now that I have so many music pupils we can afford to pay twenty-five dollars a year more rent. It is entirely a question between me and the landlord, so you need trouble yourself no more about it."

"If you choose to be a fool, of course it is no business of mine," retorted Adrian. "But I don't mean Aunt Adrian's money to be touched. I mean to take it to buy myself a share in old Dowkin's business."

"Oh, you do, eh?" said Katie, satirically. "And what is to become of mamma's portion and mine?"

"Women have no business to be selfish," said Mr. Barr, gruffly.

"And how about men?" retorted merciless Kate. "Oh, there is Arline, waiting behind the curtain, to see how you enjoyed the surprise! Come out, dear," as she lifted the pretty Turcoman draperies, "He wasn't so agreeably startled as we hoped,—in fact, I think the surprise was more on our side than his."

She spoke in a constrained voice, —and there was a white frightened look on Pretty Arline Atwood's face as she glided our under the lamplight.

"I—I am sorry that I intruded," said Arline. "I can see now that it was a mistake. But Kate urged me to stay and give you a surprise."

Adrian's face grew radiant. "My dearest Arline," this is indeed kind of you! If—"

But Miss Atwood drew away her hand.

"Please don't," said she. "I must be going almost immediately. I have been away from home and papa too long already. And—and—"

"Well, darling?" cried Adrian Barr.

"I may as well say it at once," exclaimed Arline, flushing to the roots of her golden tresses. "There never can be anything more between us, Adrian I could not trust my happiness to the keeping of a man who could speak so brutally and selfishly to his mother and sister as you spoke to-night."

And, drawing the satin quilted hood over her face, she ran out of the room, leaving her lover standing blankly in the middle of the floor.

"Oh, Adrian, don't look so shocked!" said Mrs. Barr, with the true maternal instinct of consoling her son. "She don't mean it. She will take it all back again."

"Humph! said Kate Barr, dryly, "I think she does mean it. And I do not believe she will ever retract her words."

Kate was right. Arline Atwood never would consent to see Adrian Barr again. Six months afterward she was married to Mr. Courtney, the opposition lawyer of the village. And she has never ceased to rejoice that her eyes were opened to the true character of her first love in time to break off the engagement.

"I always thought him so handsome," said she. "But he didn't look handsome that night, as he stood there talking so cruelly to his mother. If there is any truth in the doctrine of the transmigration of souls, Adrian Barr must once have been a sleek, wicked tiger!"

The Voice.

Nothing betrays so much as the voice, save perhaps the eyes, but they can be lowered, and so far the expression hidden.

In moments of emotion no skill can hide the fact of disturbed feeling, though a strong will and habit of self-control can steady the voice when else it would be failing and tremulous.

Certain voices grate on the nerves and set our teeth on edge, and others are just as calming as they are iritating, quieting, or like a composing draught.

A good voice, calm in tone and musical in quality, is one of the essentials for a physician—the "bedside voice," which is nothing if it is not sympathetic by constitution.

Whatever its original quality may be, the orator's voice bears the unmistakable stamp of art and becomes artificiality; as such it may be admirable—telling in a crowd, impressive in address, but overwhelming and chilling at home, partly because it is always conscious and never self-forgetting.

An orator's voice, with its careful intonation and accurate accent, would be as much out of place beside a sick bed as a brocaded silk for the kitchen girl.

The voice is much more indicative of the state of the mind than many people know or allow.

One of the first symptoms of failing brain power is indistinct or confused utterance; no idiot has a clear or melodious voice; the harsh scream of mania is proverbial, and no person of prompt and decided thought was ever known to hesitate and stutter.

A thick, loose, fluffy voice does not belong to the crisp character of mind which does the most active work, and when a keen-witted man drawls and lets his words drip instead of bringing them out in the sharp, incisive way that ought to be natural to him there is a flaw somewhere.

Cultivation of the Memory.

I believe that memory may be cultivated—that the memory not naturally retentive can be made retentive—that the erratic mind, incapable of concentration and fixed thought may be trained into a condition of intelligence and advanced mentality. How, is not hard to understand. What intelligent training is to the body, intelligent training on a different line is to the mind. The shallow-minded man who reads a two-volume novel, and 24 hours later could not, to save his life, tell the name of the hero, has no one to blame but himself if his mind refuses even so insignificant a service, The untrained eye sweeps through the pages but partially conscious of what it sees. It gets no more than the sense. The names never become fixed upon the retina. The brain asks for information, but the retina may not give it. There is no fixity. The eye, worthy of incalculable training, has failed in its work, and the brain suffers with it. The remedy is easy. Application can do what nothing else can. A single cursory glance of the long-neglected eye may not and cannet impress the mind with an intelligent picture. Common-sense, intelligent comprehension can. Replace the cursory glance with careful attention. Substitute system for the lack a day habit of skimming. Impress the mind with what is seen; place it indellibly by sufficient thought to give it character and shape; remember it because it is your will that it should be remembered. There is very little required to bring the mind up to its possibilities. But that little must be done well, and nothing may be done well without patient application.

She Had Mixed the Evenings.

From the New York Sun.

Her head was pillowed on his breast and looking up in a shy way she said:

"Do you know, dear George, that—"

"You mean dear James, I think," he interrupted, smiling fondly at her mistake.

"Why, yes, to be sure. How stupid I am! I was thinking this is Wednesday evening."

Mrs. Logan's Popularity.

From a Washington paper.

When Senator Logan and his wife mingle in society you can see their eyes seeking each other with a smiling understanding. She is, as you know, always a great favorite here. Even during this late crucial winter when, added to his defeat for the Vice Presidency, his seat in the Senate was known to be in imminent peril, although the General did not go out much her receptions were thronged and her society at the social gatherings was courted. I remember at the British Minister's last ball—at which his second daughter was introduced into society—that General Sherman, who was making a flying visit to Washington, and entered the ball room late, sought out Mrs. Logan promptly, and escorted her to the supper room, after making a long promenade with her through the suit of drawing rooms. During this time of anxiety over her husband's campaign she has remained quietly at her home on Iowa circle here, sending him relays of fresh clothing, chatting pleasantly on general subjects with friends who dropped in to see her, and latterly occupying herself much with the preliminaries for the excursion and high tea on the Jane Mosley on the 29th in behalf of the Garfield hospital of which she is one of the patronesses. One day last week, the same when General Logan's cause looked darkest—she was out shopping for this event with Mrs. Perter Heap, one of our charming younger society ladies; and as they passed the Washington Post building Editor Stilson Hutchins came out and said bluntly: "Well, Mrs. Logan I suppose you've hear of your husband's defeat," referring to a sensational dispatch from Springfield which had just been put on the Post bulletin board. "Indeed; is that so?" she asked with a gentle courtesy, quite unmoved, and went on talking to the two young ladies with her about their purchases of silk and satin; but as soon as they regained their carriage and she felt herself alone among friends, she leaned back in her seat and said wearily: "It seems hard that, after four years' anxieties this should be the end." Driving at once to the telegraph office she dispatched to General Logan the rumor she had heard. Promptly came the answer from his indomitable heart: "It is not by any means certain as yet that I am defeated." Yesterday, upon his victory his first act was to dispatch the good news to his wife. During last evening she received many congratulatory telegrams, of which Senator Warner Miller sent one of the best from New York City, in behalf of himself, Senator Platt, of Connesticut, and Senator Cullom, of Illinois, the Republican members of the Committee on Inter-State Commerce, which was in session at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

Fastest Train in the World.

From the New York World.

Some over-confident Englishmen boasted a few weeks ago that "The Flying Dutchman" train, from London to Liverpool, was the fastest in world. But they soon found out that they were mistaken. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company sends a train out of New York at 9 o'clock every morning that beats the time of the "Flying Dutchman." Considering the distance covered, it is the fastest train in the world. When the care-worn business man journeys from New York to Philadelphia, Chicago, or St. Louis, he finds in the parlor cars of the Pennsylvania Railroad a luxurious home on wheels. As he is being whirled along at the rate of sixty miles an hour or better not a jolt disturbs his serenity. The rails rest on a bed ballasted with solid rock, and the joints are made with a kind of chair and fish-plate, of the company's own make, that cause jointless rail. There is no dust, little noise, and not a cinder. A few weeks ago there were put on a number of new parlor cars finished at the company's shops at Altoona. Instead of the ordinary flat window, they are fitted with five bay windows on each side, each about seven feet wide. The passenger can look up or down the road for miles without leaving his seat, and the new windows admit twice as much light as the old ones did. The cars are somewhat larger than the old style, and are divided into a main saloon, ladies' boudoir, smoking room and retiring room.

Recently the entire running time between the Atlantic seaboard and the great western cities has been reduced. On the 9 o'clock morning train the time to Chicago is twenty-fours; to Cincinnati, twenty-one hours; and to St. Louis, twenty-nine hours, with a corresponding reduction to other points. This speed is maintained without the slightest danger to the traveler.

During the war of rates which began last winter, the Pennsylvania Company alone maintained its rates. Beginning May 25th, though, it fixed the fare to Chicago at $15; to St. Louis at $19; and to Cincinnati at $14, with corresponding reductions to other points.

The Conditions not Favorable.

Young Lady—Do you not think that Miss S. is a very graceful girl?

Young Man—I never saw her but once, and then she appeared anything but graceful.

Young Lady—Indeed! Where did you see her?

Young Man—I saw her falling over a wheelbarrow.

A package of $23,000, carelessly wrapped up in an old newspaper, knocked around in a passenger coach on the Wabash road all day. The porter found it, but the amount was so small that he did not think it worth his while to keep it.

An eye-deal person—The occulist.

For Life and a Fortune.

[Chicago Herald "Meddler."]

"Guess you never heard of the great run I made for the settlements with a fortune in dust an' the Injuns after me, did you?" remarked a passenger from the Pacific coast. Nobody present had ever heard of it, and all were curious.

"Wall," resumed the Argonaut, "I was a prospector way back in '49. I wan't afraid of no Injuns nor nothin,' an' so I struck out over the range where white men had never been before. I traveled aroun' an' prospected an' prospected until I was 'bout out of grub, an' had got mightly discouraged. Finally I met a young Injun squaw, an'—wall, I was younger then than I am now, an' I charmed her. She took pity on me an' told me where I could find bushels o' gold. I followed her directions, an' sure enough, openin' right out o' the mountain side was a ledge full o' nuggets as big as my thumb an' bigger. Oh, but it was wonderful. I threw way my gun an' all my food an' everything, and loaded up with gold. Just as I had picked up 'bout all I could carry I heard a whoop. The buck Indians had discovered me. Then began a race for life. Though I was loaded down with gold I threw 'em all off the trail an' arrived safely at the settlements. My gold weighed out just $1,971,000 worth. Yes, sir; those are the exact figures, barrin' a few odd dollars an' cents. It was the biggest strike ever made in Californy."

"You say you carried the gold yourself, without horse or assistance?" inquired a man, who was busy with paper and pencil.

"Yes, sir; every ounce of it."

"Well, will you be kind enough to tell us how fast you ran with 9,350 pounds of gold about your clothes?"

But the alleged 49er, casting one withering glance at his questioner, demonstrated his agility only by a rapid flight into the next car.

Mercer County Vandals.

A dispatch says that for several weeks Dr. Gibson, the principal capitalist of that section, has had a large force of men at work erecting a magnificent tomb for himself and wife in the cemetery. The blocks of marble were of immense size and a special switch was laid to transport them and steam apparatus rigged for lifting them into place. It was to be surmounted by a gigantic statue, in marble, fifteen feet high. The work was pretty well completed, and the statue swung into place on Tuesday. Thursday morning when the mechanics went out to work they discovered that some malicious or drunken scoundrel had gone in the night and chipped it with a hammer, doing no great damage but defacing its beauty in four places. The news of the piece of vandalism created great excitement and indignation, and if the miscreant is discoverad it will go hard with him. So far there is no clue, although certain parties are suspected.

The monument cost $70,000 and was said to be the most costly private monument in the state, if not in the United States. When Dr. Gibson announced his intention of building it the cemetery companies of Meadville and Sharon, well knowing the great attraction it would be and the trade it would draw, each offered special financial inducements to him to place it in their grounds, but the doctor, with becoming sensitiveness, declined to put his remains up at auction for decorative purposes, and preferred to build the tomb at Jamestown, among those with whom he had spent his useful life.

What Blocked the Matrimonial Wheels.

There was a wedding tour in this direction the other day and the happy couple were accompanied by three others. It was a sweet spectacle to see the four pairs promenading up Jefferson avenue with hands clasped and a taffy-like smile spread over every face, and hundreds of pedestrians stopped to gaze and admire. The porter of a wholesale house wasn't quite satisfied with what he could see, and stopped the last couple and inquired:

"Is it a case of love?"

"You bet!" replied the young man.

"Are they extremely happy?"

"Jest a-biling over, sir."

"Why don't you and this girl follow suit?"

"I'm perfectly willin', but Sarah kerflunks on me. I've asked her over twenty times to have me, but it's no go."

"Never! never!" she firmly said as she rolled her cud of gum to the other side for a moment. "When a man takes me to the circus and crawls under the canvas to save expenses, and then can't see the man with the lemonade nor the boy with the peanuts, wouldn't hitch to him if I had to go out and set a bear trap to catch a partner!"—Free Press.

He Wasn't Ashamed.

From the Syracuse Standard.

A clerk and his country father entered a restaurant Saturday evening and took seats at a table where sat a telegraph operator and a reporter. The old man bowed his head and was about to say grace when a waiter flew up singing, "I have beefsteak, codfish balls and bullheads." Father and son gave their orders, and the former again bowed his head. The young man turned the color of a blood-red beet, and touching his arm, exclaimed in a low, nervous tone:

"Father, it isn't customary to do that in restaurants!"

"It's customary with me to return thanks to God whereever I am," said the old man.

For the third time he bowed his head, and his son bowed his head, and the telegraph operator paused in the act of carving his beefsteak and bowed his head, and the journalist pushed back his fishball and bowed his head, and there wasn't a man who heard the short and simple prayer that didn't feel a profounder respect for the old farmer than if he had been President of the United States.

Is the Color of the Sun Blue?

It may be asked, What suggested the idea that the sun may be blue rather than any other color? My own attention was first directed this way many years ago, when measuring the heat and light from different parts of the sun's disk. It is known that the sun has an atmosphere of its own, which tempers its heat, and by cutting off certain radiations, and not others, produces the spectral lines we are all familiar with. These lines we customarily study in connection with the absorbing vapors of sodium, iron, and so forth, which produce them; but my own attention was particularly given to the regions of absorption, or to the color it caused; and I found that the sun's body must be deeply bluish, and that it would shed blue light, except for this apparently colorless solar atmosphere which really plays the part of a reddish veil, letting a little of the blue appear on the centre of the sun's disk where it is the thinnest, and staining the edge red, so that to delicate tests the centre of the sun is a pale aquamarine, and its edge a garnet. The effect I found to be so important that, if this all but invisible solar atmosphosphere were diminished by but a third part, the temperature of the British Isiands would rise above that of the torrid zone; and this directed my attention to the great practical importance of studying the action of our own terrestrial atmosphere on the sun, and the antecedent probability that our own air was also and independently making the really blue sun into an apparently white one.—Prof. Langley, in Science.

A LOVE SONG TO A WIFE.

We have been lovers for forty years;
O, dear cheeks, faded and worn with tears,
What an eloquent story of love ye tell!
Your roses are dead, yet I loved ye well!

O, pale brow, shrined in soft, silvery hair,
Crowned with life's sorrow and lined with care
Let me read by the light of the stars above
Those dear, dear records of faithful love.

Ah, fond, fond eyes of my own true wife!
Ye have shown so clear through my checkered life;
Ye have shed such joy on its thorny way
That I cannot think ye are dim to-day.

Worn little hands that have toiled so long,
Patient and loving and brave and strong,
Ye will never tire, ye will never rest
Until you are crossed on my darling's breast.

O, warm heart, throbbing so close to mine,
Time only strengthens such love as thine,
And proves that the holiest love doth last
When summer and beauty and youth are past.

Successful Barn Raising.

On Thursday the neighbors and friends of Benjamin Hunter and family assembled at his pleasant home to engage in that popular and useful occupation, barn raising. It was one of the most successful affairs of the kind ever held in this county and so faithfully did everybody work that the frame of the barn was put in position before dinner time. It is a very large barn, and will long, we hope, remain to be a testimonial to the fact that in united effort there is strength. Mr. George Miller superintended operations with his usual skill showing himself to be especially fitted for this work.

Dinner hour arrived, and never in the annals of such affairs has a more sumptuous or suitable dinner been provided. Mrs. Hunter deserves the credit for this in its preparation as well as in the way it was served. On the spacious grounds in the shade of large trees the company sat down to the well laden tables. At the first table there was a very large number—one person reported 95 and another 110. At the second table there were 50 and last of all about 15 young girls were served.

Especially was the dinner noticable for the choice quality of everything. Persons who have been attending such affairs all their lives and are now well advanced in years say that Mrs. Hunter surpassed all the similar efforts they have ever known to be made on such occasions.

It was a very enjoyable affair and all parties were pleased. The company included several of Bellefonte's citizens.

—We give below the score of a recent base ball game between the Rough and Readys and the Browns, of this place. The Browns are composed of Hoffman c, Garret p, Harper s. s., Houpt 1b, Ryan 2b, Garman 3b, Lose r f, Jenkins c f, Fees l f. The Rough and Ready were Howley c, Crider p, Anderson s s, Pearl 1 b, Kaine 2 b, McDermot 3 b, Seibert r f, Downing c f, Burns l f. The score was 24 to 11 in favor of the Browns.

—We hasten to explain that little affair about Dr. Geissinger's cigar smoker and holder. As soon as Will Gray got possesion of it, in an excess of generosity and konesty, he rushed to the Doctor to restore it to him and thus saved the Doctor the price of a "lost" notice. Mighty good thing to have such an honest law student as Will Gray, isn't it? There may be hope for the legal profession yet.

—Mr. Haag's Pleasant Gap brewery team run a short distance in this place last Friday without the guidance of a driver. Coming from the street west of the depot the horses ran up High street, narrowly escaping the centre arch of the High street bridge and were caught before reaching Spring street. So far as we are aware, no damage of any kind was done by the runaways.

—The workmen engaged on the interior of the Court House have torn out the partition separating the entrance on the second floor from the main auditorium. This will increase the size of the court room considerably, and it will accommodate perhaps a hundred more people than it formerly did.

—The Presbyterian ladies are busy taking up carpet and working themselves almost to death in cleaning their church when a few dollars wold pay for having the work done. Don't offer to do it hereafter, ladies, but make the trustees attend to that duty.

—From the Millheim Journal: "Mr. Laird, of Bellefonte, the champion roller skater of Centre, Clinton and Clearfield counties, tarried in town on Monday evening and delighted our skaters with a few samples of his wonderful tricks on rollers, in Musser's rink."

—Renovo has no bridge within its boundary that is over 100 feet high so the male inhabitants of the town endeavor to distinguish themselves by jumping from fast moving trains

Bulwer Lytton's Bridge.

Where it Touches the Shores and the Great Columns in Midstream.

"What a beautiful bridge between old age and childhood is religion. How intuitively the child begins with prayer and worship on entering life, and how intuitively, on quitting life, the old man turns back to prayer and worship, putting himself again side by side with the infant," remarks Sir E. Bulwer Lytton, in his "Strange Story."

Yes, but between its distant abutments the bridge of life has many high and awful arches through which the wild waters dash and roar in wrath and desolation. Prayer and worship alone do not sustain these. Nature's solid rock must lie unshaken beneath, and human art and skill must rear and solidify the structure overhead. God's will is best exemplified in the laws He has made for the creatures whom He has placed under their control. Neither the child's trustful "Our Father," nor the old man's "Forget me not in the midst of mine infirmities," will alter this by the weight of a single grain.

Science and art first—then faith and prayer—is the order of heaven itself. Divinity heals through its agents, and those agents are the discoveries of man; not in the vague announcements of prophets or seers. Is life a burden to you? Does time drag? Is your power to cope with life's problems and duties weakened? You are not well. Your blood is sluggish and tainted, perhaps; or some important organ is torpid or overworked. This fact may have taken the form of dyspepsia, rheumatism, gout, malaria, pains in the stomach, chronic headache, or any of a dozen other ills. PARKER'S TONIC will invigorate you, as fresh air invigorates those who have been shut up in damp, fetid cells. It is powerful, pure, delicious, scientific, safe—the keystone of the central arch of the bridge of life. 17 22 4t

SPEER'S
PORTUGAL GRAPE WINE,

ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE,
Used in the Principal Churches for Communion.
Excellent for Females, Weakly Persons and the Aged.

Speer's Port Grape Wine

FOUR YEARS OLD.

THIS CELEBRATED WINE is the pure juice of the dead ripe Oporto Grape, raised in Speer's vineyards. Its invaluable

Tonic and Strengthening Properties

are unsurpassed by any other Wine. Being produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. The youngest child may partake of it and the weakest invalid use it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated, and suited to the various ailments that affect the weaker sex.

It is in every respect A WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice.

It is the juice of the Oporto Grapes, preserved in its natural, fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation, thereby destroying the exciter of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits and will keep in any climate.

Speer's Burgundy.

Is a dark rich medium Dry Wine, used by the wealthy classes as a Table or Dinner Wine, and by physicians in cases where a dry wine instead of a sweet port is desired.

Speer's (Socialte) Claret.

Is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry.

Is a Wine of superior character, and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy.

IS A PURE distillation from the grape, and stands unrivaled in this country for medicinal purposes.

It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grapes from which it is distilled.

See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.

Grant's Journey to the Mountain.

NEW YORK, June 16.—William H. Vanderbilt's private car was the last of the three which made up the special train which was to convey General Grant to Mount MacGregor. General Grant arrived at the depot about 9 o'clock, and at once entered the Vanderbilt car and took his seat on a sofa. With his own hands he adjusted his woolen skull-cap and drew closer the neck-scarf so as to conceal the ugly swelling that filled out the right side of his neck even with the ear. He watched with apparent interest the movements of Drs. Douglass and Harrison, who were arranging chairs and bags so that the general should be as comfortable as possible during the trip. Heavy drapery was so arranged as to prevent any draughts from reaching the sick man. Mrs. Grant sat at the general's right hand and he was ever under her watchful eyes.

MT. MACGREGOR, N. Y., June 16.—When General Grant alighted from the train here a large banner confronted him bearing the words, "Welcome to Our Hero." At the moment a photographer with a camera on the platform took an instantaneous picture of the general alighting. The general, steadied on either side by Henry and Harrison, his attendants, started to walk from the train to the Drexel cottage. The ascent was easy and the distance short, but his strength failed and he was placed in a chair which was carried to the cottage by two porters. At the cottage stoop Miss Drexel welcomed the party and conducted the ladies to their rooms. The general walked to his room on the same level as the broad piazza, and there he sank into a chair with pillows beneath and behind him. The perspiration was standing on his face, and the strain of the journey gave way to the reaction of weakness. He laid back with closed eyes and the nurse fanned his face.

Dr. Douglass remained the entire evening with General Grant, who despite fatigue, was wakeful until 10 o'clock. His throat was then painted with cocoaine and he settled for the night. Dr. Douglass retired to an adjoining room, though he has rooms at the hotel, and the nurse was left to watch with the general, who at this hour—11 p. m.—is quiet as though sleeping. The family are now retiring for the night.

Winning a Bride with a Warrant.

LYNCHBURG, Va., June 15.—A month ago a Turk, describing himself as Charles Costick, one of Arabi Pasha's soldiers, wandered into Campbell county. He was industrious and polite, and by hard work had accumulated about $200. He settled in this county because he fell in love at first sight with Miss Annie Harris, the daughter of a small farmer. She encouraged his advances until she had made him present her with $115 and a silk dress. Then she sent him word that she had decided she could not marry him. Miss Harris left the county on a visit to some friends, but her destination was concealed from the angry Turk. He finally traced her to Staunton. He told his story to a policeman, and at 9 o'clock last night she was arrested. She asked Costick whether he would prefer to have his money back or to marry her, and she promised to marry him on condition that he would withdraw the warrant. He amended the proposition by agreeing to withdraw the warrant after the marriage. This she agreed to, and they were married by a magistrate.

A Disinherited Mother.

MASSILLION, O., June 14.—There is an important sequel to the story of the matrimonial alliance made by Gustavus P. Reed, of this city, with Miss Harriet A. Butler, a woman 44 years of age, at Brooklyn, N. Y., a couple of weeks ago and his death within twenty-four hours after marriage. The body was brought hither, accompanied by the bride of a day and her brother, F. M. Butler, and buried last Wednesday afternoon. Since the interment a will of Mr. Reed has been produced, which bequeaths to the wife all his property, including even the elegant old homestead in this city and all its contents.

Mr. Reed's father died ten years ago and since that time the son and mother, the latter 80 years of age, have occupied the homestead. The son was remarkably attentive to the mother, and when the contents of the will became known, cutting the aged and feeble mother off without a shilling and even turning her out of doors, all the acquaintances of the dead merchant realized what had for some time been quietly whispered among them, that he was insane. Friends of the mother employed counsel to contest the will.

The bride is domiciled since the funeral in the house which she claims as her own, although aware that her presence is offensive to the bereaved mother. The brother of the bride is quartered at a hotel.

A Capricious Stroke of Lightning.

CALLICOON, N. Y., June 14.—Patrick Cox of this town has nine children. Eight of them sleep in a room in the upper story of the house. Early on Friday morning a heavy thunder storm passed over the place. Lightning struck Cox's house in the middle of the roof. The bolt entered the room where the children were sleeping. James, aged 15, was thrown out of bed and clear across the room. A table was hurled from one side of the room to the other. The partition wall between the room and another was entirely demolished, and the stairs leading from the kitchen were torn into splinters. A boot that lay on the bedroom floor had the side torn off of it, and a hanging lamp, a clock, and a cupboard filled with dishes were thrown in a heap on the floor. Six of the children were made unconscious, but they recovered in a few hours. Ten feet of the roof was knocked off, and not a particle of the debris can be found.

General Grant Growing Weaker.

NEW YORK, June 14.—After the usual Sunday consultation Dr. Douglass said General Grant had suffered some little disturbance last night, the cause of which was attributed to eating some asparagus, but he slept with little break from 1 a. m. to 5 a. m. and was not suffering to-day, though feeling the heat. Dr. Shrady said the swelling on the outside of the throat had increased and affected the patient's voice. Colonel Fred Grant, after the consultation, said his father had a bad night, and that the general was growing weaker and his condition now seems to be one of increasing debility without pain.

He added that if possible he would be removed from the city on Tuesday next, one week earlier than was intended.

A Presbyterian Church Burned.

SHIPPENSBURG, Pa., June 14.—Between 4 and 5 o'clock this afternoon the Presbyterian church at this place took fire and burned to the ground. The fire was discovered on the roof and is supposed to have caught from one of the chimneys in a neighboring house. The weather was very warm and a strong wind was blowing from the northwest. A dwelling house on the opposite side of the street was also ignited and totally destroyed. The church building was one of the finest in the Cumberland valley and with its additions cost $26,000, upon which there is an insurance of $10,000. On the dwelling house there is an insurance of $1,000.

The Mexican Waterspout.

CITY OF MEXICO VIA GALVESTON, June 14.—Advices from Leon say that the waterspout which broke a few miles above the town of Paso de Cuarenta, situated twenty miles from Lagos City, practically annihilated the town. Thus far one hundred and seventy bodies have been recovered. Many bodies were washed several miles down the valley, and are being discovered in the fields below the town The search is now going on. Paso de Cuarenta had about eight thousand inhabitants before the flood.

Expects to be Resisted.

WILKESBARRE, June 14.—Sheriff O'Berrende will leave here to-morrow for Highland and Drifton with eight writs of ejectment against striking miners who are holding possession of company houses and refusing to pay rent or return to work at the terms offered by the operatives. The sheriff expects resistance will be offered and will take a posse of coal and iron police with him to quell any disturbances that may arise.

The Cholera's Onward March.

MADRID, June 14.—Two new cases of cholera were reported in this city to-day, and there were seven deaths from the disease. In the city of Murcia there were fifteen new cases and twelve deaths, and in the province of Murcia, outside of the city, thirty-seven new cases and sixteen deaths. In the city of Valencia three cases were reported, and in the province forty cases.

Gen. Grant to Leave Home To-Day.

NEW YORK, June 15.—When Dr. Douglass left Gen. Grant this morning he said the General had passed a comparatively good night, and though his voice was very husky, the fact did not inconvenience the patient. The arrangements for departure to-morrow morning, one week earlier than at first intended, are being perfected to-day.

United in Death.

NEW YORK, June 15.—Mrs. Sarah Rutter, the widow of J. H. Rutter, President of the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad, died yesterday morning of inflammation of the brain, at Sing Sing, where she was under the care of Dr. R. L. Parsons, Mr. Rutter died of diabetes on Friday last. The death of several dear friends and anxiety about her husband's illness in 1881 so affected Mrs. Rutter's mind that it was thought advisable to put her in charge of a physician. On Wednesday last she had an acute attack, and shortly afterwards became unconscious. Thus both she and her husband were dying at the same time, but neither knew anything about the other's condition.

Pennsylvania Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Pennsylvania Postmasters have been commissioned as follows: Alexander Wertz, Mechanicsburg; David R. Boyer, Tamaqua; Magnus J. Kline, Belfast; T. B. Clauser, Seidersville; Abraham Bitner, new office at Watch, Lancaster county; W. J. Davis, Port Allegheny, late Postmaster Allegheny.

An Amicable Adjustment.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., June 15.—An amicable agreement has been reached by which the Philadelphia & Reading Company will discontinue all further opposition to the construction of the Reading, Pottsville and Mahanoy railroad.

Goes to the Seashore.

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.—Vice President Hendricks and wife arrived here this evening. They will remain here over night and in the morning will go to Atlantic City, where they will remain about a week.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

Valuable National Guard Trophies.

A very interesting and doubtless spirited contest will be commenced next Monday by the companies belonging to the Fifth regiment, N. G. It will be the aim of each company to secure one of two very elegant trophies which Col. D. H. Hastings has had prepared for the contest. These splendid jewels are of solid gold and are beautiful and interesting both in workmanship and design. The first and the one which perhaps attracts most by its splendor will be presented to the company attaining the highest standing and general average. The upper part of this trophy consists of crossed muskets surmounted by a knapsack on top of which is a rolled blanket. The muskets are crossed at such an angle as to make this part of the design very graceful. Below and constituting the chief part of the trophy is a keystone with the State coat of arms and above this is N. G. P. in monogram On the reverse side is the inscription "Trophy: presented by Col. D. H. Hastings to the company which attained the highest standing at last annual inspection."

The other is equally complicated and ingenius in design. It will be given to the company which ranks highest in marksmanship. The upper part is a musket in horizontal position. This is connected by slender chains to the principal part of the badge, which is a target showing the rings and bull's-eye very perfectly. In a semi-circle around the upper half of this target is a wreath and above are the symbols N. G. P. Below the target is suspended a sabre. The reverse side of the target is inscribed. "Trophy: Highest rating in marksmanship. It belongs to the company whose captain wears this badge." Either of these badges is worth a very earnest contest to obtain and the handsomely uniformed captain who can place it on his breast will indeed have cause to feel proud.

We hope that at least one of these trophies will be won by Company B. The inspection which will determine the place where they belong will begin next Monday.

The State Teachers' Meeting.

The thirty-first annual meeting of the State Teachers' Association, which will convene in Harrisburg on the 7th, 8th and 9th of July next, promises to be a great success. The inaugural address will be delivered by John Morrow, of Allegheny City, while Charles A. Riddle, of Pittsburg, will discuss the industrial feature of education. George F. Luckey will be among those who will deliver addresses. Remarks will be made by Governor Pattison. On Friday, June 10, the teachers will visit Gettysburg. An excursion has also been arranged to Fortress Monroe, Richmond and Washington.

Bellefonte's "Rising Young Lawyer" at Chambersburg.

W. Francis Speer, son of W. T. Speer, formerly of this place but now of Bellefonte, Pa., is here on a visit to relatives. His many friends who knew him when a boy will be pleased to see him. Mr. Speer is a rising young lawyer of more than ordinary promise, and we predict for him a brilliant future.—Chambersburg Daily Herald.

—Mr. David Y. Wagner, of Houserville, was a visitor in Bellefonte Wednesday and reports all quiet along the line between his home and Bellefonte.

—On Saturday evening a curtain in an upstairs window of L. L. Brown's residence on High street caught fire from the gas and blazed up quickly and brightly. Mr. Brown was in the bath room at the time intent on his ablutions. A crowd quickly gathered and tried to enter the doors, which were locked. One man went through the glass of a front window and another man burst open the rear door. By this time Mr. Brown, who heard the noise and realized the cause of it, had jumped into enough clothes to render him presentable and tried to stamp out the fire. Failing in this, he grabbed a bed covering and with the aid of a few persons who entered smothered the flames before they did much damage. Mr. E. J. Swavely, in the meanwhile, attempted to crawl through the keyhole, but the key being in the lock his feet would not go through and he was forced to give up the attempt.

—We had the pleasure yesterday of feasting our eyes upon ten or a dozen strawberries so uniform and lovely in size and color as to rival those sometimes seen in pictures of this queen of berries. They were cultivated in Dr. T. R. Hayes' garden.

—Save enough money to visit the festival in Association Hall Saturday evening. The best of ice cream and strawberries will be served.

SPECIAL MENTION.

—We desire to call the attention of our readers, particularly those desirous of securing correct business training, to the advertisement of Christie's School of Business. We know this school to be one of the very best in the United States, and no young man can make a mistake by deciding to take a business course in this Institution. We can say of the principal, Professor Christie, whom we have known for some fifteen years, that there is no more faithful or conscientious teacher in the country. The growth of his school has been marvellous, and its reputation for thoroughness has been such as to attract a number who have graduated in business colleges elsewhere to take an additional course here. We do not write this note at either Professor Christie's request or suggestion, but because we believe in saying a good word for those who deserve it.—Educational News.

—Mr. and Mrs. Wash Rees will feast on tremendous strawberries for a while. Clusters of the largest berries we have ever seen are now ripening on the vines in his garden. Some of them measure five or six inches in circumference.

Pens and Ink Worth Recommending.

We have been favored with samples of the celebrated Spencerian Double Elastic Steel Pens, and after trying them feel justified in highly commending them to our readers. They are made of the best steel, and by the most expert workmen, and have a national reputation for certain desirable qualities which no other pens seem to possess in so great perfection. Among these are uniform evenness of point, durability, flexibility and quill action. So popular have they become, that of the "Number One" alone, as many as fourteen millions are sold annually.

Complaints are constantly made of the difficulty in getting good ink. Probably, in some cases, the durability of the ink is of little consequence—the writing has done its work in an hour or two; but, it should be remembered, occasions constantly arise which give great importance to writings, or perhaps to the mere signature of a name. The usual inkstand is, of course, resorted to, and if an inferior ink is commonly used, the result possibly may be disastrous.

The Spencerian Writing Fluid combines in a high degree, three essential qualities, fluidity, color and durability, and is absolutely reliable for all business purposes.

The proprietors of these well-known Pens and Inks, Messrs. IVISON, BLAKEMAN, TAYLOR & Co., 753 and 755 Broadway, New York, Educational publishers, will send free, on application, a Sales-book of their Spencerian Specialties, which gives a full descriptive list of these and many other standard articles of interest to stationers and booksellers.

—There is seldom a handsome house built in Bellefonte that Mr. Jerry Fasic does not have something to do with in the way of painting and beautifying it. As the years pass by he seems to become more expert at this line of business.

Notice.

James Harris & Co. will not be beat on prices. j17 3t

—A large water tank to supply locomotives with water is being built along the railroad near the glass works.

We have abolished the credit system, and now treat all alike; will sell hardware for cash to our patrons at about what we have heretofore been paying ourselves. Why? Simply because we are going to buy for cash.

H. K. HICKS & BRO.

A Card to Our Patrons.

The indulgence of our friends has enabled us to resume business at our old stand on Allegheny St., Bellefonte, Pa.

It has become necessary to change our method of doing business to a strictly cash plan, which hereafter will be adhered to steadily.

We have over $22,000 worth of stock on hand which is in all respects suited to the trade we have so long been supplying. Circumstances compell us to reduce this immense stock at least ten thousand dollars during the coming year. To do this we must and will sell at prices, for cash, that will command the attention and patronage of the public. H. K. Hicks will hereafter give, to the exclusion of all other business, his entire time and closest attention to the hardware business, and will always be found in the store.

We return our grateful acknowledgements to friends who have given us a helping hand in enabling us to resume business, and are confident of the future. H. K. HICKS & BRO.

Bellefonte, June 16th, '85.

—The old McAllister property has been undergoing quite extensive improvements since the fire in the drug store room. As soon as the painters and paper hangers vacate the store room Walter Bayard will step in with his stock of drugs.

Jas. Harris & Co. want it distinctly understood that they will not be undersold. j17 3t

—Despite the warm temperature and the absence of rain, the atmosphere was singularly pure and refreshing at an early hour this morning.

—We have about one hundred cook stoves and ranges of the latest improved styles which will be sold regardless of profit, as we are compelled to realize upon them.

H. K. HICKS & BRO.

—Cherries are ripening rapidly in the sun's genial rays.

The Coming Circus a Good One.

On Tuesday, June 30, we are to have a first circus and menagerie in Bellefonte. It is so close on to the eve of the Fourth of July, we might as well make the 30th a holiday. It is several years since we have had a circus. The sight of a white canvas, decorated with the flags of all nations; of the street pageant, with several bands of music, the elephants, camels, the long line of cages, chariots, and richly caparisoned cavalcades of circus stock, passing through our usually quiet streets, will be a sight refreshing to those who have not seen a circus in three years.

What is still better, to have an opportunity of seeing a first class circus performance, at only 25 cents admission, will brighten up the countenance of the average boy, who would rather lose his breakfast than to miss the circus. More particulars next week.

"The Book of Best Things," Edited by Rev. R. Crittenden.

We have received some advanced pages of The Book of Best Things, edited by Rev. R. Crittenden and published by the Lippincott Company Philadelphia. The table of contents gives over one hundred articles on a variety of interesting and practical topics contributed by some of the best writers in the country including a few by the editor.

The work is very neatly executed in keeping with the good taste and ability of the publishers. In a note from Mr. Crittenden he says, "You may inform my friends that I have invented a mortgage lifter in the form of a 12 mo. volume, entitled The Book of Best Things. With the sale proceeds I hope to remove the last debt in threatening aspect standing against the home I occupy on Linn St. More than two hundred copies are already sold to individuals in Bellefonte at $1 per copy. The book will be ready for delivery to any who desire it before the close of the present month."

The list of persons in Bellefonte who have already subscribed for this excellent book includes every class. We sincerely hope that many more in town and out of town will procure "The Book of Best Things," and at the same time enable a faithful worker to secure for himself a pleasant and permanent home.

Howard's Fourth of July Celebration.

If our kind correspondent at Howard had sent us the description of the Decoration Day exercises at Marsh Creek, Howard and Jacksonville within a reasonable time after their occurrence we would have been pleased to publish, but now that the interest in such affairs has ceased at least for this year we must content ourselves with what he writes of the proposed celebration of the Fourth of July.

Howard band and G. A. R. post, he writes, are making preparations for a big celebrate in Butler's woods on the Fourth of July. A lunch will be served free, but ice cream and other luxuries will be sold. Instrumental and vocal music, speech-making and an open air concert by the Howard Cornet Band in the evening will be among the exercises. The Howardites are fully abreast with neighboring towns and when they "lay to" with head and foot, success is put down in large caps.

The Favorite Pug.

"Somebody dead across the way?" inquired a traveling man of his wife, just after coming in from a trip, and noticing some crape on the door.

"Yes," she replied, "it was put out this morning."

"Who is it?"

"I don't know. Mrs. B.'s husband and her pug dog were both sick yesterday, but the undertaker hasn' called yet, and I don't know which of them died. I don't think it is her husband, though."

"Why not?"

"Because I saw her at the window a while ago and she was crying as if her heart would break."

We have missed the best part of the season on cultivators and shovel plows, double harpoon hay forks, rope, etc., and will now sell these goods at a sacrifice in order to close them out for cash.

The Cyclones Met.

BURLINGTON, Ia., June 12.—A dispatch from Massena, Cass county, says that a tornado struck the village of Bridgewater, eight miles from Massena on Monday, the wrecks indicating that two storms met there, as there are two distinct traces of tornadoes in the town. The first house struck, a two-story frame, was blown down and Mr. and Mrs. Lilly severely injured. The latter has since died. Mr. Hartman's house was the next one struck, and not a timber was left standing. Mr. Condon, who was in the house, received fatal injuries. The members of the family were all more or less hurt. Dr. Reagan's drug store was moved from its foundation, and the stock ruined. The building next to the drug store was the only one in the village that escaped injury. S. F. Patterson's broom factory was blown away, some of the heavy machinery being carried several hundred feet. The dwelling house and all the out buildings of James Sweaton are gone, barely a trace of them being left. James Ford's house was unroofed, and one end of Richard Bell's dwelling is a complete wreck. E. Strong's stable was blown away, but his horse was found uninjured tied to the manger half a mile away. The fine residence of James Hendry was blows down, and a bed containing two children was lifted into the yard, not a cover of the bed being disturbed. A score of other buildings were more or less damaged. The loss will reach $60,000.

SIOUX CITY, June 12.—Two men have just arrived from nine miles north of Sioux City. They were passengers on the Sioux Falls train, on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road due here at 7.10. The train was struck by a cyclone and every car thrown from the track and smashed to pieces. There were three passenger coaches and a baggage car. A large number of persons were injured. No details have been received.

The Dolphin a Success.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The Dolphin made her trip to sea to-day with the Naval Advisory Board and Mr. John Roach on board. When she left the Scotland lightship for the six hours' trial at sea she darted along at a higher rate of speed than had been reqnired by the naval authorities. She was loaded with coal and iron sufficient to represent the weight of her battery, to the water line. The light-ship was passed on the return a minute after the six hours.

Mr. Herman Winters announced that, according to the log, the vessel had made an average speed of 12¾ knots, but that, according to the charts, the speed was 13 9-10 knots. According to the figures prepared by Captain John Parker the average speed had been 14 1-10 knots per hour. The speed attained by the Dolphin was regarded by all on board as unusual. One naval officer said that he would be willing to wager $10,000 that, with a clean bottom and a smooth sea, the Dolphin could make seventeen knots an hour.

The Dolphin has now passed all the tests required of her by the naval authorities, and will, without doubt, be immediately placed in commission. It is said that the number of naval officers who want to be placed in command of the steamer would make a list a foot in length.

An Appalling Accident in France.

PARIS, June 11.—News of a terrible accident which occurred at Thiers, a manufacturing town in the department of Puy de Dome, reached here this morning. A large crowd had assembled yesterday in the court house in that place to listen to the evidence of a rather sensational murder trial in progress.

A later dispatch says that it was when the people were leaving immediately after the adjournment of the court and were jammed upon the stone stairway leading to the street the staircase fell. The scene that followed was appalling. Immense masses of masonry from above crushed down upon the struggling people below, grinding through their flesh and bones and maiming and mutilating them in a horrible manner. The fall of the staircase and the shrieks of the people lying helpless in the ruins caused a panic in the court room, and there was a rush for the now wrecked exit. Those who were in front were unable to withstand the pressure from behind, and were hurled down upon the men and women crushed in the fall of the staircase, and whom the people in the street were already striving to rescue. The dead already number twenty-four. The total number of the injured is now placed at 163. Of these, fourteen are very seriously injured, and some of them will die.

The Statesmen Adjourn.

HARRISBURG, June 12.—The legislature adjourned sine die at noon today. The last hour in each house was, as is customary, devoted to the presentation of mementoes of esteem to the presiding and subordinate officers, Speaker Graham being handsomely remembered. The republicans presented him with a handsome hammered silver service, George Robinson, of Delaware, acting as spokesman. Mr. Barnes, of Erie, for the democrats bestowed a handsomely framed group of the members of the present session, while Mr. Packer, of Tioga, for Chief Clerk Pearson, handed him a beautiful gavel. All the remarks were eulogistic of the excellent manner in which the speaker presided and in answer to them he at times was so overcome as to be unable to speak.

President pro tem. Mylin of the senate also received a handsome silver service. There is not the least intimation that an extra session will be called.

State Legisature.

HARRISBURG, June 10.—At the afternoon session of the house the vote by which the bill authorizing the Pennsylvania State college to sell its eastern and western experimental farms was defeated, was reconsidered, but after a brief discussion it was again defeated. At the evening session, the house, after passing a number of senate bills, adjourned at 11.30.

In the senate this afternoon the general revenue bill was taken up and an amendment exempting manufacturing corporations from taxation was adopted and the title of the bill was changed to read, "A further supplement to an act entitled an act to provide revenue by taxation, approved June 7, 1879." A number of house bills passed. Among them the bill framed by the bituminous coal miners' commission, authorizing the appointment of a special policemen for anti-tramp associations; limiting advertising general elections to four newspapers in each county.

This evening the vetoed congressional apportionment bill was discussed under the five minute rule and passed over the veto, yeas 34, nays 15. Hart, Vandegrift and Sutton, democrats, voted with the republicans, Ross, of Greene, also voted to pass the bill. A number of appropriation bill passed finally. The bill fixing the pay of members and officers of the legislature was passed. Agnew, republican, voted with the democrats on the congressional apportionment bill. The senate adjourned at 1 o'clock a. m.

Cholera Spreading in Madrid.

MADRID, June 9.—The civil guards in this city have evacuated their barracks, owing to the breaking out of cholera there. Of four cases in the barracks three proved fatal. The men are now encamped in a village on the outskirts of the city. Measures are being taken to thoroughly fumigate and disinfect the barracks and all private houses in which cholera has made its appearance. There were eight suspected cases here yesterday.

There were seven fresh cases of cholera in Valencia yesterday. All persons arriving in Valencia by sea are subject to three days' observation, and all persons wishing to leave the city must show a properly attested certificate of good health. All persons arriving from towns where there are cholera cases are promptly sent to the hospitals.

A New Cabinet.

LONDON, June 12.—The queen has accepted the resignation of the Gladstone ministry, and has summoned the marquis of Salisbury to form a new cabinet. The marquis has arrived at Balmoral.

In the house of lords this afternoon Lord Granville announced that Mr. Gladstone had tendered to the queen the resignation of himself and his entire cabinet. Lord Granville also stated that the queen had accepted the resignations and had summoned to her presence the marquis of Salisbury, who is now at Balmoral in conference with her majesty. Therefore, Lord Granville said he hoped the house would abandon all ordinary business.

After the announcement of Gladstone's resignation the house of commons adjourned until Monday.

An American Concert in London

LONDON, June 10.—The American concert in aid of the sick and wounded British soldiers of the Soudan campaign was given last evening in St. James' Hall, and was a grand success. All the artists were Americans. The professionals included Miss Marie Van Zandt, Mrs. Antoinette Sterling, Miss Gertrude Griswold, Miss Nettie Carpenter and Miss Adelaide Detchon. Among the amateurs were Lady Manderville, Lady Randolph Churchill and Mrs. Reynolds. The Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Edinburg, Mr. and Mrs. Phelps, and most of the leaders of London society, were present.

The Prince of Wales and Minister Phelps had a long and pleasant chat behind the scenes.

Another Crippled Soldier Dismissed.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Richard Middleton, the coal inspector of the Interior Department, was to-day summarily dismissed from his position. He was the captain and organizer of a company in this city in 1861 which carried out the peaceful inauguration of President Lincoln. He served throughout the war as an officer of the 50th New York Engineers, and was made its lieutenant colonel for gallantry on the field. He is a cripple from injuries received in the war, and was appointed at the instance of the Grand Army of the Republic by Mr. Teller to the place from which he has been removed.

The Locusts Marching South.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 9.—Further facts were learned to-day in reference to the appearance of swarms of locusts on the ridges North of this city. Numbers are increasing, and all shrubbery and trees and every green object are covered with the insects. In some localities they are so numerous that all other sounds are drowned by their noise. To-day they began moving into the valley, and are spreading through the lowland farms. They appeared in this country seventeen years ago, and their ravages destroyed nearly all vegetation.

Jenks Gets an Office.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Ex-Congressman George A. Jenks, of Brookville, Pa., arrived here to-day in response to a telegram from Secretary Lamar. Mr. Jenks has been tendered the position of assistant secretary of the interior, which was created by the last congress, and which ex-Congressman Post so confidently expected to get. This appointment gives two of the highest offices in the gift of the administration to Pennsylvania, the other being Assistant Postmaster General Hay.

Ohio State Convention.

SPRINGFIELD, June 11.—The republican state convention was called to order in the new wigwam in Market Space at 10 o'clock by Hon. Joseph K. O'Neale, of Lebanon, chairman of the republican state central committee. The delegations of the eighty-eight counties of the state were all full, and over four thousand persons were packed in the wigwam.

Hon. J. D. Taylor, of Guernsey county, was announced as temporary chairman, and addressed the convention.

At the afternoon session the conventon nominated Judge Jas. B. Foraker for governor on the first ballot. The nominations of General Robert P. Kenney for lieutenant governor, Judge George W. McIlvain for supreme judge, and John C. Brown for treasurer, were by acclamation. J. A. Kahler was nominated for attorney general, and Wells S. Jones for the board of public works.

Maxwell's Identity.

ST. LOUIS, June 10.—Acting Chief of Police Huebler received to-day a letter from the brother of the late C. Arthur Preller, who was murdered at the Southern Hotel in April, enclosing a letter from a friend, which throws new light upon the identity of Maxwell. The writer is Walter S. Carrington of Stockport, Lancashire, England, and he says that Maxwell's real name is H. M. Brooks. He was articled to a firm of solicitors in Stockport, and twelve months ago established a law practice at Hyde, where his father is a schoolmaster. He forged his father's name to a check and left for America, taking with him a fine magic lantern belonging to a doctor named Sidebotton, a suit of clothes, and a watch for which he never paid. It is presumed that Maxwell and Brooks are one the same person.

Gen. Buckner's Marriage.

RICHMOND, June 10.—Gen. Simon B. Buckner of Kentucky was married here this evening to Miss Delia Claiborne, daughter of Major John H. Claiborne, one of Richmond's most prominent and estimable citizens. The ceremony was performed at the residence of Howard A. Claiborne, Esq., the bride's uncle, by the Rev. Joshua Peterkin of St. James' Episcopal Church, in the presence of relatives and intimate friends. Gen. Buckner is well remembered as a Confederate officer, while the bride has been one of the leading belles in Richmond society, and is related on both sides to Gen. George Washington and his wife. Gen. and Mrs. Buckner left to-night on a northern-bound train.

Subsidies to Railroads.

OTTAWA, June 11.—The Government to-night gave notice of railway subsidy resolutions. They subsidize the short line from Riviere du Loup, or Riviere Ouelle, Province of Quebec, to Edmonston, New Brunswick, for eighty-three miles to the extent of $258,000; increasing the former subsidies to $490,000; also the line of railway connecting Montreal city with St. John and Halifax harbors, via Sherbrooke and Moosehead Lake, to the extent of $80,000 per annum for twenty years. The Government increases the subsidy to the Canada Pacific Railway connection with Quebec by $340,000, making, with former subsidies, $1,500,000.

Brown Paper Instead of Bonds.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—About five months ago Rudolph Von Baron procured board in this city, giving as security to his landlady a sealed package which he said contained $275,000 in German bonds, an alleged legacy from his grandfather in Germany. The board bill having assumed large proportions, the landlady to-day opened the package, which was found to contain a quantity of brown paper, a piece of the capstone of the Washington Monument, and a child's story book. Von Baron has now taken lodgings at the police station.

What the War Caused.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Adjutant General Drum has completed a list of the casualties in the federal army during the late war. The aggregate number of deaths is shown to have been 359,496. Of these 29,498 occurred among union soldiers held as prisoners of war. The total number of troops reported as furnished by various states under various calls is 2,772,408. Some of the returns were duplicated, and it is estimated that the actual number was about 2,500,000.

Vassar's President Resigns.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 9.—There have been rumors for some time past of a disagreement between the trustees of Vassar College and President Samuel D. Caldwell, of that institution. This afternoon the latter handed in his resignation, which was accepted. A committee of the board was appointed to employ a successor. President Caldwell came here about seven years ago from the Newton Theological Seminary at Newton, Mass.

No New Cases.

WILKESBARRE, June 12.—There have been no new cases of the fever in Sugar Notch since the last report, and it is not expected that the disease will spread. This evening a relief committee composed of prominent citizens of Sugar Notch was formed, who will take the action necessary to relieve the suffering of the destitute.

More Earthquakes.

LONDON, June 11.—The British Resident of Cashmere reports that earthquake shocks of great severity continue. The towns of Baramulla and Sopur have been utterly ruined and 400 persons killed. There has also been great loss of life in adjacent villages. Many cattle and sheep have been killed.

New Hampshire State Officers.

CONCORD, N. H., June 11.—To-day A. B. Thompson was chosen secretary of state and John B. Clarke state treasurer.

A Romance of Real Life.

HARTFORD, June 8.—An unusually romantic marriage was that of W. W. Converse, president of the Winchester Arms Company, of New Haven, to Miss Belle Spencer, of Hartford, which has just occurred. Thirty years ago the bride was a girl of twenty; her father had just died and her mother had opened a boarding-house to support her family. Among her boarders was Mr. Converse, a small-salaried clerk. To the daughter he proposed marriage, but the young lady, after confessing her attachment, stated that marriage would be impossible so long as her mother lived, as she had made it her duty to remain with her and aid her in supporting the family. Converse pleaded in vain, and a lover's quarrel ensued, and Mr. Converse removed to New Haven.

A few years later, Mr. Converse married a connection of the Winchester gun manufacturers, and the road to wealth opened up before him. A report of Miss Spencer's death reached him and was uncontradiated. Last November Mrs. Spencer died, and then for the first time Mr. Converse learned that his old love was still alive. As his wife had been dead three years, he revisited Hartford repeatedly during the Winter and again offered the hand which had been rejected thirty years before. It was accepted, and after her many years of filial devotion the gray-haired bride has recovered her girlhood's choice, not now a struggling clerk, but the wealthy president of a great corporation.

Beats Jersey Justice.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 12.—Abe Upton, (colored) was to-day sentenced to the penitentiary for sixteen years for a highway robbery committed yesterday. Upton last evening snatched a purse from a young lady on the street and was arrested this morning at 2 o'clock. An indictment was found against him and at 3 p. m. he was convicted.

A Nomination.

LOUISVILLE, June 12.—J. W. Tate, present incumbent, was to-day nominated by the state central committee as the democratic candidate for state treasurer.

Washington's Personal Appearance.

Washington's boots were enormous. They were No. 13. His ordinary walking shoes were No. 11. His hands were large in proportion. He could not buy a glove to fit him and had to have his gloves made to order. His mouth was his strong feature, the lips being always tightly compressed. He weighed 200 lbs., and there was no surplus flesh about him. He was tremendously muscular, and the tame of his great strength was everywhere. His huge tent when wrapped up with the poles was so heavy that it required two men to place it in the camp wagon. Washington could lift it with one hand and throw it in the wagon as easily as if it were a pair of saddle-bags. He could hold a musket with one hand and shoot with precision as easily as ether men did with a horsepistol. His lungs were his weak point and his voice was never strong. He was at this time in the prime of life. His hair was a chestnut brown, his cheeks were prominent, and his head was not large in contrast to every other part of his body, which seemed large and bony at all points. His finger joints and wrists were so large as to be genuine curiosities. As to his habits at that period there was much that might be interesting. He was an enormous eater, though he was content with bread and meat, if he had plenty of it. But hunger seemed to put him in a rage. Of course all this was changing when he grew old. A year before he died, his hair was very gray and his form slightly bent. His chest was very thin. He had false teeth which did not fit, and pushed his under lip upward.

—This is a certain lady's way of making strawberry shortcake: Half a cupful of butter, a cupful of sugar, three cupfuls and a quarter of flour, 1 of milk, three of eggs, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and the juice of half a lemon. Beat the butter to a cream and gradually beat the sugar into it. Add the lemon juice, the eggs well beaten and finally the flour, mixed with the baking powder. Bake in pans in a moderate oven for twenty minutes. Hull and mash three pints of strawberries and mix them with a cupful of sugar. Spread the berries and sugar on two of the cakes and over the fruit spread whipped cream, just before the cake is to go on the table. Put the remaining strawberries and sugar over each. Cover with whipped cream.

THERE is a rather undignified ostentation about the President of the United States making a boast of having paid his fare to Gettysburg and back. It is Pettison's gripsack over again; and the good sense of the people will so understand it. There is no reason, whatever, why a railroad company should not carry the President to Gettysburg without making him show his ticket. It is a very low grade of Democratic affectation that tries to curry popularity by such means. The people of this country have an estimate of the dignity of the Presidency that is only offended by this sort of display.

We were never puzzled to know why there are so many bones in a shad, but we would overjoyed to find out how the meat crowds itself between the bones.

The Hessian fly is very ungenerous to attack the wheat in the West just at present. If half the reports are true the grain is struggling for life at best.

A new novel soon to appear will be entitled "A Superior Woman." We all know her. She married some other fellow. They always do.

There is Trouble in Store

For those who neglect to rectify the irregularities of the stomach, liver and bowels, which they foolishly imagine "will come right of themselves." Of this silly error such persons are usually disabused by the development of some serious chronic malady, traceable to what they were pleased to consider a trifling disorder of the above named associate organs. Such a culmination is easily avoided. A course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters invariably has the effect of renewing the secretive action of a torpid liver, restoring healthy digestion and assimilation, and rendering the habit of body perfectly regular. The activity of these all important functions being restored, and the entire system toned and regulated by this incomparable corrective and invigorant, no danger to the general health is to be apprehended from causes which, if not eradicated in time, will assuredly undermine it.

A French scientist who went into the manufacture of artificial brains has just become bankrupt. There was no demand for the product. He is kept from starvation by a wealthy friend who is a manufacturer of dancing pumps.

VITALIZED PHOSPHITES aid most wonderfully in the bodily and mental growth of infants and children. For perfect growth there must be a large amount of phosphites supplied to the brain; if there is an insufficiency, the nerves become hungry, and oftentimes starved; the nights are restless, and consequently the days are fretful,

The ill effects of the brain starvation of little children do not end with childhood, but feebleness is continued through life.

VITALIZED PHOSPHITES is indispensible to all children who would learn easily and retain what they learn. Every thought carries away a moiety of the vital energy of the brain, and if it is not resupplied there is brain hunger. Every child who is studying should take the VITALIZED PHOSPHITES daily during the study months; even with those who are making no special effort, a daily dose as an occasional nutriment will give an assured means of keeping up both growth and vigor.

Remember, it is not a medicine, it is a special FOOD to brain and nerves.

Opening the Fountains.

In numberless bulbs beneath the skin is secreted the liquid substance which gives the hair its texture, color and gloss. When this secretion stops, the hair begins at once to become dry, lustreless, brittle and gray. Is that the condition of your hair? if so, apply Parker's Hair Balsam at once. It will restore the color, gloss and life by renewing the action of nature. The Balsam is not an oil, not a dye, but an elegant toilet article, highly appreciated because of its cleanliness.

—It has always been a consoling reflection in the United States that the government at Washington will continue to live whatever internal commotions may arise, but it seems that when internal conflicts occur in the borough of Bellefonte the municipal government also ceases to exist.

—The yard surrounding Mr. Wm. B. Miles' residence in Milesburg has been greatly improved this year and is now very handsome. The soil was rolled very smooth and the finest lawn grass sown thereon which is growing beautifully. The fences have been newly painted and the walks repaired to correspond.

—Claude Bible, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Bible, was buried in Howard street cemetery at 3.30 p. m. Thursday. The funeral services were impressive and the attendance much larger than usual at a child's funeral. Rev. W. O. Wright, of Milesburg, officiated, assisted by Rev. Wm. Laurie and Rev. R. Crittenden. The music was beautifully rendered by Misses Mary and Sarah Bradley, Mr. Keller and Mr. Meyer. The pall bearers were W. E. Gray, Walter Bayard, David Lieb and J. C. Meyer.

A Fine Normal School.

The village of California is situated on the left bank of the Monongahela river in Washington county, fifty miles from Pittsburg. The surroundings of the school are free from all influence hurtful either to health or morality. No intoxicating drinks are sold either in the town or vicinity. The scenery surrounding the school, embracing views of the river, the railway, the village and the neighboring hills and valleys, is rarely equaled in its beauty and grandeur. The growth of the school has been marvelous. The course of study is so arranged so as not only to make thorough practical schools, but gives that culture which makes every student a thinker. This institution has no "hobbies," it aims to make students thorough in all departments.

It also aims to give its graduating students a thorough knowledge of the laws of the mind and their application in mental development, thus basing the art of management and methods of instruction on the science of education itself. The critical exercises in connection with the frequent reviews, and discussions tend to make competent and trustworthy teachers. The model school is at all times open for the inspection of those desiring to prepare for the work of teaching. The drills in all the departments of the school are exceptionally thorough and the methods of instruction are such as prove valuable at all times and such as by their results commend themselves to the sound judgment of every intelligent person. The school is at present making a rapid stride upward, and is under the careful management of that intelligent and honorable gentleman, Theo. B. Noss, who thoroughly understands his work.

Mrs. Noss, (the principal's amiable wife), is superintendent of the model school and performs her duty faithfully and has a smile for all who are under her care. Miss L. Hart, a competent and thorough instructor, has charge of the music department. Edward L. Raub, late of the L. H. Normal, has been teaching in the California the past year and is doing all he can for the progress of the school Several new teachers have been added to the faculty and all are earnest workers. The school is larger now than it has ever been before. The rooms in the building are all occupied. Students leave with regret their "old normal home" at the close of each term and though some cannot return as students, they are anxious to visit the school and meet the dear faces of those left behind. Although California is one of the youngest of the ten normal schools in the State, it is the largest and is second to none in the quality of the work done. It offers advantages unsurpassed.

Distinguished Visitors.

On Thursday afternoon, the 11th inst., the 5:20 train brought to this place what is said to be the handsomest railroad coach in the world—the one built for the late Judge Packer and now owned by the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company. It is named the "Minerva" and is beautiful and luxurious.

The following gentlemen occupied the car and alighted at the station here: John Fritz, of Bethlehem; Samuel Thomas and Ed. Mickley, of Catasauqua; Capt. R. A. Abbott and Wm. H. Sayre of Bethlehem, and Fred Mercur, of Wilkesbarre. The last-named gentleman is the superintendent of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company.

On Friday the above-named gentlemen, in company with Messrs. Robert and George Valentine, Bernard Lauth, of Howard, and Edmund Blanchard, Esq., went in carriages to look at the valuable ore lands in this vicinity. We hope that this visit is the precursor to active operations in the way of developing these mines of mineral wealth. The gentlemen will departed Saturday morning.

Items from Centre Hall.

Our little village has been improving since the completion of Lewisburg and Tyrone Railroad. Several new buildings are in process of erection, and the future prospects of the town are flattering.

William Wolf & Co. have received quite an extensive line of new goods and are now prepared to supply the increasing demands of the town.

A carriage load of young folks from Bellefonte passed through here on Sunday afternoon en route to the Old Fort, no doubt to partake of one of John Odenkirk's famous suppers.

We noticed that Mr. C. P. Hewes and a lady friend were registered at Meyers' Hotel on the 12th inst. We are glad to see that our friend Charles still retains his wonted devotion to the fair sex. CENTRE.

—It is said that work is progressing rapidly on the new railroad to Lemont and there are scarcely more than three miles yet to build.

The Bellefonte Academy.

The examinations at the Bellefonte Academy began last week and continued through this week. Thursday Greek and the Higher Mathematics were the subjects in which the classes were examined. On Friday the branches were German and French. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week were devoted to Latin and Higher English and History in the young ladies' department. To-day the Primary Department will be examined.

As soon as the Principal, Rev. Jas. P. Hughes, ends the examination of the higher classes, he will depart for Princeton, to see his son graduate.

We asked Rev. Mr. Hughes why it is, instead of these examinations, he does not close his school with public exercises. He replied that to do so would detract correspondingly from the time and attention given to the studies; that exercises in debate and oratory occur each Friday afternoon to which the public is welcome. Of late years he has been giving his entire attention to day-pupils as the building is not suitable for boarding students. Young men will not come from luxurious homes to occupy rooms not provided with the most ordinary conveniences.

But it is certain that the high standing which this institution has attained affords to the people of this town a remarkably good opportunity to found an academy which will be at once creditable and useful. It is a fact that, although honors in colleges are comparatively few and there is a great struggle to secure them, the students who have received their preparatory education at the Bellefonte Academy have almost invariably carried off one or more of these honors. Indeed, a student sent from the Bellefonte Academy to any one of the best colleges is not required to submit to an examination, Prof. Hughes' certificate of scholarship being the open sesame. In view of this solid basis to build upon, is there not enough local and educational pride among the citizens of our town to see that the Bellefonte Academy has the material resources to extend its usefulness?

Commencement at Birmingham

The Altoona Tribune of this morning gives a full description of the commencement exercises of Mountain Seminary at Birmingham, on Wednesday. We copy such paragraphs as refer to Centre county people:

The commencement exercises were opened by prayer by Rev. Dr. Hamill.

The first piece on the programme was the "Norwegian Bridal Procession" by Misses Guy, Patton, Aikens and M. Tuller. The audience filling the "little church on the hill side" to its utmost capacity, showed their appreciation of its merits by a well deserved applause.

Vocal solo, "Ah, at Length," by Miss Aikens was given with pleasing effect,

Rev. Dr. Hamill, of Bellefonte, gave a very beautiful and pleasant history of the founding and growth of the school and surroundings from a plain building surrounded by briars and sheep pasture to the beautiful and picturesque garden of Eden that it now is, and of the moral influence that has spread to the surrounding community and of the amount of good that has been done in the very unassuming and modest way in which this home in the mountain has always been controlled. He added that he felt glad that such a home and school was in our midst that our daughters might have the advantage of it.

At the conclusion of his address, the doctor, on behalf of the principal, conferred the diploma upon Miss Lizzie Robinson, the graduate for this year. The musical exercises were then resumed, the instrumental march and chorus from "Tannhauser" being rendered in good style by Misses Stewart, Little, Aikens and Vanvoorhis.

Mother and Child.

VAIL, June 11, 1885.

The B. E. V. mail stopped at this station this morning and discharged her passengers, three ladies and eight children. As the conductor gave the signal to go ahead, an object was seen to come tearing out on the platform of the car and a voice was heard to say: "I guess that one don't go." It was discovered that her little 3-year old child was among the discharged passengers, having followed the others out of the train without being noticed by its now nearly crazed mother. Johnnie Swoope, the ever watchful and efficient brakeman, siezed the youngster and restored it to the arms of the frantic mother, who nearly overwhelmed the brave and noble "Johnnie" with her exclamations of joy and thankfulness. The Lehigh Valley Car.

Last Friday we were afforded an inside view of the Lehigh Valley car now standing on the track here. It is a veritable palace on wheels, sumptuously furnished and artistically decorated, and a model of convenience and comfort. The floor is covered with heavy Brussels carpet. From the entrance, or vestibule, of the car an extended view of the track and all the surrounding scenery can be obtained. In the sitting room are a half-dozen splendidly upholstered chairs, an escritoire which can, if needed, be converted into a bed and which is surmounted by a clock. Overhead there are sleeping berths, and there is, in the car, sleeping accommodations for sixteen persons. The butler's pantry is complete and has quite an array of china, glass and silverware, every article bearing the stamp "Minerva."

The kitchen is thorough and complete and the car is said to contain $1500 worth of provisions, including the latest and choicest the market affords. The provisions are all kept in a deep ice-cool refrigerator beneath the car. The woodwork throughout the car is of the richest description and finished with elaborate care. French plate glass panels, ornamented and chased in rich designs, beautify the sides of the car and reflect the splendor within and velvet curtains hanging in luxurious folds heighten the rich effect. It is said to have cost $60,000.

—The Centre Democrat and the Philipsburg Ledger are fighting like two bull dogs and all about an affair that wont be affected in the least by their growls and bites. The Centre Democrat took the somewhat inexplicable and peculiar position of endorsing Governor Pattison in his veto of the Soldiers' Burial Bill, which aroused the indignation of those heroes of a half-dozen wars, H. C. Williams and J. D. Douglass, of the Ledger. After biting the points off fifteen steel pens the Ledger man aimed a lightning shaft at the Democrat. The Democrat replied in a mild sort of way, as if somewhat surprised that the Ledger should take its article so much to heart. But another rejoinder in the Ledger last week indicates that its editors seem to mean business and looks very much as if the Ledger had undertaken to abet the unsuccessful attempt of the Watchman to completely obliterate the Democrat. We've thought all along that the Watchman and the Democrat were watching for an opportunity to get an advantage of each other, and the introduction of this new and professedly independent element into the conflict mixes matters dreadfully, and renders the outcome as uncertain as war between England and Russia. We'll bet that Mr. Frank Bible, if he feels like it and considers it worth while, can write an article that, if not so ungentlemanly, is at least as sharp as that of the Philipsburg Ledger, and we shall look for it with interest.

Serious Accident.

While H. H. Harshberger, Esq., was in Virginia his cow wandered back to its original owner residing beyond Roopsburg. On Thursday he procured a horse and buggy at Garman's livery, and, in company with his wife, went after the animal. He was on his way back driving the cow and leading the horse, and when a short distance this side of Roopsburg, near Sechler's slaughter house, something coming from behind frightened the horse, which became unmanageable. Mr. Harshberger was thrown down and his wrist sprained. The horse ran away, the buggy passing over Mr. H. Running down an embankment, the buggy was upset and Mrs. H. thrown against a fence. The lady was quite badly injured and was carried into a house near by and assistance summoned from town. She threw up blood and the doctor believes she is injured internally, although that cannot be definitely told until the effect caused by the first shock passes away. She was brought to her home in this place in a carriage. The buggy was wrecked and the horse somewhat injured.

The Experiment Station at State College.

On Tuesday, June 9, the House of Representatives at Harrisburg reconsidered its adverse vote on the bill to establish an experiment station at the State College, and passed it finally by a vote of 117 to 42. It now goes to the Governor. The result was reached in spite of the constant and bitter opposition of Mr. Rhone, and is a subject of congratulation to the College authorities and all friends of education in Centre county. Mr. Woodward has been the consistent and active friend of the bill and deserves much credit for his efforts in its behalf.

—Miss Betsy Jacobs, who resides on the corner of Lamb and Penn streets in this borough, died quite suddenly about 12 o'clock Thursday. Funeral 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Medical

HEALTH—STRENGTH—LONG LIFE

SECURED BY THE USE OF

Crosby's Vitalized Phos-phites;

Nature's own BRAIN AND NERVE FOOD.

This preparation is one of the greatest triumphs of modern chemical science. It is at the same time a remedial agent, and a natural food. It restores exhausted and wasted functions of the brain and nerves, and its daily use, while in health will prevent such exhaustion and waste. This is the only preparation of Phosphorous that has received the approbation of the entire medical profession in this country and in Europe,

Over a MILLION PACKAGES have been prescribed by Physicians in the United States.

SETIHP-SOH PHOS-PHITES

CROSBY'S
Vitalized Phosphites

Is a phosphoid or nerve-giving principle extracted from the ox brain and and wheat germ! It does not contain any of the animal substance of the brain, but the phosphoric principles dissolved in boiling alcohol and filtered from the brain substance. It is passed through felt filters, carefully dried and mixed with a little oven-dried flour from the germ of the wheat. Ephraim Cutter, A. M., M. D., in his microscopic analysis, testifies that it contains none of the substance of the ox brain; the active phosphites only are present.

By a careful and elaborate chemical analysis made by Prof. Percy, it was proved to be composed of the vital and nerve-giving principles of animal and vegetable life. The brains of animals and of fish contain an oily, nitrogenous hypo-phosphite, which, when separated from the fleshy part of the brain, is found to be a nerve-sustaining principle of animal life. It is entirely different in its effects from any compound made by chemists in the laboratory; the VITALIZED PHOS-PHITE contains in the highest degree this life-sustaining power; it requires no preparation or change in the stomach, but is in condition to be immediately assimilated into the blood, and ready for appropriation by the brain and nerves; it is essentially a special Brain and Nerve Food. Nature, not art, has prepared it for immediate assimilation.

In many forms of disease the digestion is so imperfect that chemical compounds, or even food, is not digested well enough to be assimilated and changed into blood. This VITALIZED PHOS-PHITE needs no digestion, it is assimilated at once, because it is in the exact condition found in all nervous structure, and is deposited in the nerve structure in the same condition as it was taken from it.

WHY HAVE PHYSICIANS
PRESCRIBED OVER HALF A MILLION PACKAGES OF VITALIZED PHOS-PHITES

And found this Brain and Nerve Food indispensible in the treatment of all diseases of debility, and in all mental or nervous disorders?

Because it is not a secret remedy; they know what they are prescribing; the formula is on every package. Because it is one of those perfect preparations that seldom disappoint them.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Feb. 16, 1882.

I have prescribed your VITALIZED PHOS-PHITES extensively for the past seven years. I have found it invaluable in the treatment of debility, in diseases of the nervous system, and as a Tonic where the vital forces were at a low ebb. E. W. FINCH, M. D.

LANDON B. EDWARDS, M. D., Editor of the Virginia Medical Monthly, says: "I have prescribed VITALIZED PHOS-PHITES in several instances, and have also induced friends to use it. Our successes will make us prescribe it frequently."

AM. METALINE CO., 264 Greene St., N. Y.

Some three years ago my friend DR. STEARNS, Superintendent of the Insane Asylum in Hartford, told me how highly he prized VITALIZED PHOS-PHITES, and advised me to use the remedy with my many friends suffering with overwork of the brain. Knowing that I was one of the "overworked," I made the first trial on myself. The change in my health within two months after taking it was so satisfactory that I continue its use from time to time whenever I need it. I have not had a severe headache since I began its use; it was my great trouble before. I have prescribed it for very many of my friends—young, middle-aged and old—and in every case with benefit. You have given me a Brain Food in the only condition in which it can be constantly taken without danger. Many medical men whom I have induced to use it on themselves now use it regularly in their practice. S. GWYNN, M. D.

GARRETTSVILLE, Ohio, June 28, 1882.

F. CROSBY CO.,

Gentlemen: Several years ago when suffering from congestion of the vessels at the base of the brain, resulting in terrible mental depression, Dr. Leonard Sanford, of the Yale Medical College, prescribed for me the VITALIZED PHOS-PHITES. The effect was excellent, beyond all expectation; in two weeks I was a new man. Since my recovery I have recommended it to a number of my professional and other friends suffering from overwork, brain exhaustion, sleeplessness, spinal and nervous troubles and kindred complaints, and in many of these instances I have seen its good results. I have intended for some time to write to you in acknowledgement of the good effects, but I suppose you are overcrowded with letters of this sort.

R. A. TORREY, M. D.

TALLADEGA, Ala.

F. CROSBY CO.: I am wonderfully pleased with the effects of your VITALIZED PHOS-PHITES. It is the best remedy I have ever used for Nervous Debility. For the enclosed money, please send me more by this day's mail. PAUL GIST, M. D.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio.

F. CROSBY: I have prescribed over 700 bottles of your VITALIZED PHOS-PHITE, and know it to be of the greatest value in restoring lost energy, relieving debility, nervousness, and preventing consumption.

Dr. Sherman.

Rupture

PROVIDENCE, R. I., 10 Dexter St.

DR. J. A. SHERMAN—Dear Friend: I am sorry, Doctor, you have left Boston. Persons continue to come to my house to inquire respecting you, while many others write me. Many who left me said they would surely seek your aid. Your success has been wonderful, and I am quite sure without a parallel. To my surprise my large Hernia appears to be perfectly healed, I did not expect it at the age of 79. After receiving your treatment I was relieved from suffering which was fast taking my life. I have no idea I should be living had you not taken my case in hand. I weigh now 170 pounds, over thirty pounds more than then. I think you must receive a great amount of happiness from the relief given and gratitude rendered.

You owe it to my son in Boston, who has known many of your patients before and after healing, that I applied to you. "Go," he said, "to Dr. Sherman; he is doing wonders." I had failed of help from a dozen others and doubted, but he would not let me rest till I went. I bless the day I did so. It is to me a mystery, Doctor, that you have so wonderfully outdistanced all in your profession.

I hope your life will long be spared to relieve sufferers, and thus bless the world. Most affectionately and gratefully yours, REV. JOHN ALDEN.

The Rev. John Alden's case was quite as bad as Mr. James Corlew's, in Dr. Sherman's illustrated book. Those who value immunity from strangulated rupture, the injury trusses inflict, and the comforts of physical soundness should lose no time in securing the benefits of Dr. Sherman's treatment and remedies. His book, containing likenesses of bad cases before and after cure, with evidence of his success and indorsements from distinguished physicians, clergymen, merchants, farmers, engineers and others, is expressed to those who send 10 cents. Dr. Sherman can be consulted daily at his office, 251 Broadway, New York, except Thursdays and Fridays, when he will be in Philadelphia office, 302 Walnut Street. NOTE.—No operation or detention from business. Patients from a distance can receive treatment and leave for home same day. 17 24 4y

—This is the time for great fish stories.

—Strawberries are abundant and excellent.

—Ed. Garman is still talking up the Bartholdi pedestal fund.

—Roses are in blossom and make beautiful button-hole bouquets.

—The grass harvest will begin next week in some parts of the county.

—The college students will soon return home to spend their summer vacations.

—The Reformed ladies were very successful with their festival last Saturday evening.

—The Y. W. C. T. U. will meet this evening at 7 o'clock in the hall of the Y. M. C. A.

—Mr. Al. Haupt, the capable clerk in the Potter House, Philipsburg, came to Bellefonte via. Snow Shoe Saturday evening, departing again Monday morning.

—A slow, gentle shower of rain fell Tuesday night about 10 o'clock, but the parched ground drank it in so eagerly that but few traces remained this morning.

—The alterations being made to the Reformed parsonage include quite a large addition on the south side of it, which will increase its accommodations.

—Mr. John Kenyon, of Philipsburg, spent Sunday in Bellefonte. Mr. K. still manages the Philipsburg Telephone service and does it very thoroughly and perfectly.

—The strawberry and ice cream festival on Saturday evening in Y. M. C. A. rooms will be an attractive affair. There will be vocal and instrumental music for the entertainment of those who visit the festival.

—Sunday proved the falsity of the old saying that if it rains on Whit Sunday it will rain for seven succeeding Sundays. It held good for three Sundays, but we do not believe a drop of rain fell here yesterday.

—Mrs. Charles Miller made her husband a present on Sunday morning of a fine baby boy. We hope that the new arrival will be pleased with his visit to this part of the world and will grow and prosper.

—Those troubled with unpleasant dreams may find a little benefit from the following: A person sleeping on his right side, according to a celebrated French physiologist, will have incoherent and absurd dreams, but when sleeping on the left side the dreams will be of an intelligent nature.

—That part of the house on Howard street occupied by Mr. Henry Harris as an undertaking establishment has been torn down and will be rebuilt in very neat style. The new building will be occupied as a dwelling house and Mr. Harris will probably carry on the undertaking in the stone building in the rear of the laundry.

—The following seasonable advice is going the rounds of our exchanges: "Never go where you are not wanted. If a man wants you to go to his room he will invite you to do so, and if a merchant wants you to visit his place of business he will invite you through the columns of your local paper. It is wrong to intrude upon privacy; don't do it."

—Ex-Judge John H. Orvis argued the legal points Tuesday in the question between the chief burgess and the borough council, and it is said that he made such a strong presentation of the entire legality of the actions of council and its authority to appoint the police that it is extremely probable the other side will abandon their case.

—We notice by the Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin that Mr. Wilmer Crow, of Mechanicsburg, formerly of Bellefonte, was in that city Friday evening attending some exercises in connection with the Y. M. C. A. The Bulletin says: "Mr. William Crow, formerly general secretary at Bellefonte, spoke a few words on the importance of each department of the work and the necessity of each man being in his place."

—People who seem to take such delight in killing the little sparrows and allow their children to wound them with toy guns are informed that these little birds have been found to be the greatest enemies of the 17-year locust which has appeared numerously at Bedford, this State, and the locusts are being killed rapidly by the birds. If the locust should appear in this section we might think more kindly of the sparrow.

Children's Day.

The M. E. church in this place, on Sunday, celebrated what is known as Children's Day, the celebration being conducted on a very elaborate scale. During several evenings of last week the young people of the church were busy practicing the exercises of music and Scripture recitations which were to be given during the afternoon, and others were as busily and tastefully employed in decorating the interior of the church with spruce and flowers. The result of this united and earnest work was a successful observance of the day. We did not find it possible to be present at the afternoon exercises, and can give no report of them, except that we have learned that the attendance was large and the exercises pleasing and profitable, the music, which was rendered by the Sunday-school choir, being an especially attractive feature.

The decorations were so elaborate and elegant that a description cannot do justice to them. There was a canopy above the pulpit, the groundwork of which was of skyblue with spruce falling at regular intervals over it. Above the canopy was a floral cross. Around the base of the pulpit were spruce decorations. Immediately in front was an open Bible and inside the chancel rail was a mass green and floral decorations. There were ferns throwing up their stems and leaves in graceful beauty. In the centre was a pyramid of cut flowers, above which was suspended a white dove holding in her mouth a green leaf. Other choice floral pieces in the chancel and overhead within the canopy and a half dozen bird cages filled with canaries which hopped about as if enjoying the beauty that surrounded them completed the splendid pulpit decoration.

The space occupied by the choir was also surrounded with an elaborate trimming of spruce with its groundwood of blue and here and there a flower. The openwork in the wall on each side of the pulpit was decorated with draperies of spruce between which was a ground work of alternate yellow and blue. These decorations were perhaps more profuse and extensive than any ever made heretofore in any church in Bellefonte.

THE EVENING EXERCISES.

The service at 7:30 o'clock was attended by a large congregation, chiefly young people and was impromptu in its character. Rev. Mr. Foster presided and the choir rendered in inspiring style such selections as are usually sung in the Sunday-school. Speeches were made by Durbin Gray, Esq., superintendent of the Sunday-school, Rev. Mr. Woodcock and Rev. M. K. Foster. The evening exercises were brief and edifying.

Thomas—Henderson.

Mr. Clifford Smith Thomas, son of Mr. J. V. Thomas, of this place, was married in Brooklyn, N. Y., on Wednesday, the 3d inst., to Miss Margarite Diehl Henderson, daughter of George Henderson. The wedding occurred at the residence of the bride's father, No. 25 Halsey street, at noon. We clip the following description of what was a very recherche and happy affair from the Morning Journal of New York City:

"The pretty parlors of Mr. Henderson's residence were trimmed with flowers and filled with ladies in elegant evening toilets. The bride's mother, in pink brocade, point lace and diamonds, received the guests.

"The bridal party came down stairs to the strains of the Mendelsshon wedding march and took their places in the front parlor, where the Rev. Dr. Van de Water, of St. Luke's church, performed the ceremony.

"The bride is petite, pretty and a blonde. Her dress was of white satin with a front of point lace, and a full tulle veil falling over the face and train and held by orange blossoms. In her hand was a cluster of white lilies and roses.

"The groom was attended by Harris Orbison as best man. Two little girls, Mable Burghardt and Annie Schaffner, one in pink and the other in blue, were the maids of honor. Miss Mary Thomas, sister of the groom, one of the bridesmaids, a handsome brunette, wore pale pink silk and lace; Miss Harton, a lovely blonde, appeared in pale blue and lace with pink roses; and Miss McBinn, a dark eyed beauty, wore white silk and lace.

"A collation with boxes of wedding cake followed the ceremony. The bride received a roomful of presents."

The ushers on this occasion were Mr. John Blanchard, of this place; Mr. James Humer, of Altoona; and Messrs. Chase and Warner, of Brooklyn.

We will add, in conclusion, that Clifford Thomas is well known in Bellefonte. He is an enterprising and industrious young man and now holds a high and responsible railroad position at Jersey City, N. J. We wish him and his bride much joy.

Invited to Lewisburg.

We copy the following letter which will explain itself:

LEWISBURG, UNION CO., PA., June 11th, 1885.

EDMUND BLANCHARD, Esq., Bellefonte, Pa. Dear Sir: The people of Lewisburg and vicinity have arranged to celebrate the coming Fourth of July with more than the usual observance, since it marks the 100th year from the laying out of the town.

At a meeting of the citizens, they directed me to extend, through you, an invitation to the people of Bellefonte and Centre county to be present. And as it will, as we have been informed, be the occasion of the opening of an important improvement in Centre county, it will permit us to join hands with you in congratulation. I have been just now informed that the Hon. I. G. Gordon, of Brookville, Pa., one of the justices of the Supreme Court, born, bred and brought up here, has accepted the invitation to deliver an oration.

An early reply will enable us to make the programme of the day suited to your arrival.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient serv't.
J. MERRILL LINN.

Now, that the people of Bellefonte and Centre county have been formally invited to visit Lewisburg by a mass meeting of the citizens of the latter place, and the Fourth of July is just three weeks distant, it will be necessary to take immediate action.

Edmund Blanchard, Esq., replied, by telegraph, Saturday morning to the courteous invitation saying that more definite information will be sent later by mail. He started to Philadelphia that day to be gone several days, which will prevent him giving the local arrangements the necessary attention. That, however, can and should be managed by the citizens. Mr. John Powers, the chief burgess, Hon. John B. Linn, and the Logan and Undine Hose Companies might with propriety take the matter in charge, and either by discussion with other prominent citizens or by calling a meeting make an organized movement and ascertain as near as possible the transportation facilities that should be supplied. If this could be done in time to inform Mr. Blanchard he will make the necessary arrangements with the railroad company.

This, it seems to us, will be an easy and pleasant way for Bellefonte and Centre county to celebrate the great National holiday. The excursion rate will not exceed $1.50 and will probably be less than that.

Mr. Glenn Surprises Mrs. G.

Friday was the 19th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. David Glenn. Mr. Glenn remembered it, but the important event did not occur to Mrs. Glenn until the day had passed away and the shades of night had appeared. Mr. Glenn planned a great surprise for Mrs. G. and carried it out more successfully than one average man in ten could do under the circumstances. As Mr. Glenn remarked, it is easy for a woman to get up a surprise party for her husband, but for a man to roll up his sleeves and prepare enough cakes and ice cream to feed a company is difficult without his wife knowing anything about it. But Mr. G. resorted to strategy and called Mrs. Samuel Williams and Mrs. Rash Williams into his confidence. Those ladies called about 5 o'clock for Mrs. G. to go out riding, which she readily consented to do. The drive was a long one, lasting until 9 o'clock or later. Meanwhile, as soon as Mrs G. was out of her home a bevy of energetic ladies immediately invaded it and in a brief time a sumptuous feast was prepared. When Mrs. G. returned she invited her lady friends to accompany her into the house and they, after much persuasion, consented. The assembled company received her, reminded her of the event of 19 years ago and said that she would be their guest in her own house that evening. The occasion was a happy one throughout and was prolonged for several hours.

—Some time ago it was proposed in Bellefonte to run some sort of a conveyance over certain routes in Bellefonte, carrying passengers for a small sum—about 5 cents per trip. A gentleman stated to us that he had arrangements so far perfected that the conveyance to be used was then in process of construction. We have not, however, heard any more of it and it looks as if the enterprise has fallen through. We heard an astute gentleman remark only the other day that there is money in it, and somebody who is now unemployed might try it.

—Can a revised Bible be had in this town? We have seen no advertisements of any.—Huntingdon News. There are two in the Centre Democrat office here and its editors will perhaps send one to you.

Meeting of Council.

In the absence of President Crider Monday night, Mr. Shortlidge was made president pro. tem.

Leander Green, high constable, is going to Lock Haven, and consequently sent in his resignation of his office. It was accepted and the question as to the proper way of filling the vacancy was referred to the Nuisance committee for information.

Mr. Brown, for the Street committee, inquired if the street lamps not now in use may be sold. A motion was carried that the committee be authorized to sell the lamps at a price regulated by their own discretion.

The Fire and Police committee reported that a writ of quo warranto had been issued on behalf of the burgess requiring the council to show by what authority the present police are acting. The hearing was to take place at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The Market committee reported $5.50 market fees.

A motion was carried that if Mr. Dunkle, the contractor for the new street pavement, fails to comply with the terms of his contract within five days, the contract be withdrawn and the Street committee be authorized to macadamize the street.

A schedule of the basis on which the water tax of the year is levied was submitted by the gentlemen appointed for that purpose—Wilbur F Reeder, Esq., Mr. D. Z. Kline and the clerk of council. The schedule and the tax duplicate accompanying it were adopted.

On motion, the Finance committee was directed to enforce the collection of the water tax assessed to the county, and in the event of its non-payment the Water committee is empowered to shut off the water.

The time for the appeal of water tax was appointed for June 29 at 2 o'clock p. m.

In reference to the request of Dr. Dartt for water extended 200 feet to his house on Beaver street, the Water committee was directed, by motion, to make such arrangements with the Doctor as they see fit.

A Wreck on a Crossing.

The first of what will be a series of similar accidents, unless different arrangements are made, occurred Monday morning on the crossing near Reynolds' mill. Mr. Edward Wasson, a farmer living this side of Dorsey Green's place not far from Bellefonte, was on his way to town. He drove a team of horses and was seated in a large new wagon. His horses had crossed the railroad track and he did not notice a train of freight cars approaching on the B., N. and L. road until the first car had struck his wagon. The wagon was broken into small pieces and Mr. Wasson was thrown from it falling under the horses. He was kicked in the left side, in the face and on several parts of his body and it was at first thought that he was seriously injured. An examination made by Drs. Harris and Dobbins shows that his injuries are not serious, although it is a miracle that he was not killed.

We are reliably informed by the most responsible witnesses that no whistle was blown until the car struck the wagon. The train was made up, we are informed, of two cars ahead of and two behind the locomotive. Mr. Wasson told us that he did not see the train until it struck his wagon. It is clearly a case in which he can collect damages from the railroad company and it is the duty of the company to station a watchman at that place. Indeed, the borough council should, if possible, compell the company to take this precaution before another train passes over the road as it is a standing menace of destruction to every one who has occasion to pass that way.

The Postoffice.

The following paragraph is from Saturday's Philadelphia Times and is credited to the New Haven Union:

Ex-Governor Curtin, of Pennsylvania, when asked what he intended to do about the postoffice at Bellefonte, replied that it might be best to retain the present Republican incumbent, who had proved very efficient. Congressman Sowden, of the same State, has in several instances recommended Republicans for re-appointment because they happened to be the best men or to have the best facilities.

Of course, we consider the Governor very sensible in determining to retain Postmaster Johnston and it is a splendid compliment to Mr. Johnston's efficiency. Perhaps, however, there are some Democrats and possibly even our friends of the Watchman and the Centre Democrat who will be disposed to take a different view of the subject.

—Saturday was a day of runaways, three having taken place in this borough. The most important one, we understand, occurred near the Nail Works, two ladies having been thrown out of a buggy. We did not learn their names.

Personal Pencilings.

Samuel Weiser, Sr., of Millheim, is quite ill.

Mr. Wm. Jenkins returned on Friday from a business trip to Pittsburg.

Rev. S. A. Cornelius is the new pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Philipsburg.

Miss Annie Wittenmeyer, of Philadelphia, lectured on temperance in Williamsport on Sunday.

Mr. Irv. Speer spent Sunday in Tyrone and says he created quite a sensation in that quiet town.

Miss Miller, of Lebanon, is a guest of Miss Ida Gerberich at the latter's pleasant residence on Thomas street.

Rev. Dr. Black, of Williamsport, will conduct service in the Episcopal church Sunday morning and evening.

Will Gray

Friday
To survey.

Mrs. Dr. Moyer, of Logansville, grandmother of Mrs. J. D. Lose, of Millheim, is suffering with a stroke of paralysis.

Mr. George Hutchinson, a citizen of Warriorsmark, Huntingdon county, spent Friday in Bellefonte, departing at 5.20 p. m.

Mr. Sam Brooks has retired from the retail butchering business and will henceforth confine is attention to raising cattle for the market.

Mrs. Auchenbach, wife of one of the proprietors of the nail works, departed Thursday morning for Williamsport where she will be the guest of her relatives.

Miss Garretson, of Huntingdon, who has been a guest at Mr. John Miller's residence, departed Saturday afternoon, at 5:20. Miss Miller accompanied her to Huntingdon.

Mr. A. B. Steele has a field of the finest looking potatoes in the borough and expects to sample the tubers before the Fourth of July. He is giving the potato bug a dose of Paris green to-day.

Mrs. Harshberger, now that she has recovered from the shock caused by her recent runaway, is feeling much better, several bruises on her face and neck being the only bad effects of the accident.

Mr. J. W. Sellers, a clerk in Gray's store at Stormstown, visited Bellefonte Monday and says that he is not prepared to disagree with the professors about the arrival of 17-year locusts or on any other subject.

Mrs. Orvis, wife of Judge Jno. H. Orvis, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Orvis and Miss Annie Orvis returned on Friday from Clifton Springs, where Miss Annie has been attending school, this being her graduating year.

Mrs. D. H. Hastings and Miss Libbus Humes departed on Thursday for Sunbury. After stopping a short time in Sunbury they will go to Orange, N. J., to visit friends and thence to New York, Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

Messrs. Richard Winner and Antoine Cruitz, of the glass works, have gone on a trip to Baltimore and Atlantic City, and Mr. Richard Reamer, of the same institution, will first visit Norristown and then sojourn at Atlantic City.

Mr. John Irvin and his brother-in-law, Mr. E. J. Harkness, of Altoona, are sojourning in town. Mr. Irvin was formerly a resident of this place and looks as if he is prospering among the good people of the railroad city.

Mr. J. H. Swartz, of Abilene, Kan., is visiting friends in this county. He will depart on Thursday, the 18th. He thinks that Kansas is a great State and that Abilene is one of the most charming and progressive towns in existence.

Daniel Bible, Sr., of Philadelphia, the grandfather of Frank E. and George Bible is visiting here and will spend the summer months with his relatives in this and Bedford counties. He is 82 years of age, but is as active as most men of 60.

Mrs. Dunn, of Lock Haven, accompanied by her children, arrived in this place Thursday in a carriage and are guests of Mrs. D's sister, Mrs. J. G. Love. Mrs. Fisk, the mother of Mrs. Love, has been visiting her during the past week, having arrived last Tuesday.

Miss Mary Morris, the attractive niece of the Misses Benner, residing on the corner of the Diamond in this place, has received from her father a present of a very fine greyhound. It is perhaps the handsomest animal of its kind in Bellefonte and will be highly prized.

Mr. Francis Speer departed on the 9.32 a. m. train Thursday to visit his uncle and a legion of other relatives in Chambersburg and vicinity. He is one of the very great favorites in Bellefonte and we can truthfully say that he will be sincerely missed while away and we hope he will have a royal time.

Personal Pencilings.

F. W. Crider was on the sick list Monday evening.

Mr. David Butts, of this place, is in Williamsburg, Pa.

Mr. W. E. Gray has returned from his surveying trip.

Mrs. L. L. Brown is visiting her former home in Huntingdon.

Miss Cornelia Vosburg, of Tyrone, is the guest of Miss Annie Orvis.

Mr. John DeWitt, of Brooklyn, is making one of his periodical visits in Bellefonte to day.

W. I. Fleming made a recent trip to Lock Haven and spent Monday night at the Irvin House.

Mrs. Samuel Reynolds and two daughters, of Lancaster, are guests at Major Wm. F. Reynolds' new residence.

Mr. J. W. Newson, of Howard, spent Monday in Bellefonte and reports the hotel business very fair in that place.

Mr. Samuel Milliken arrived in Bellefonte on the 5:20 train Tuesday and is at the residence of his brother, James Milliken, Esq.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Orvis "went to housekeeping" Tuesday in the residence on Spring street recently vacated by Mr. Chas. Weakley.

Miss Nellie M. Kline, daughter of ex-Sheriff D. Z. Kline, left Wednesday afternoon for Tyrone, where she will be joined by her sister Mrs. Harry Brew, and together the ladies will make a tour of the West. Their trip will be for pleasure and recreation and their principal stopping points will be Chicago and Freeport, Illinois.

Miss Russell, who presides at the Telephone exchange at Lock Haven, visited Bellefonte on Saturday evening and on Sunday was the guest of Mrs. Kyle McFarlane. Miss Russell is one of the best telephone operatives in this part of the State, her voice being exceedingly distinct and musical and just the kind to convince people that the telephone is one of greatest creations of modern times.

Mr. J. A. Fiedler, city editor of the Williamsport Sun and Banner, accompanied by members of his family, was in Bellefonte Monday, having arrived on Saturday. He intended to return on the 9:32 train Monday morning, but didn't. We don't mean to say that he missed the train; but he concluded, when he reached the depot and saw the train disappearing in the hazy distance, that he would wait for the next one—that's all.

A Literary Curiosity.

On a fence near Hublersburg in this county there is said to be the following notice:

An. Body. Las. Dis. Bars. or Fans,—Obens. is—a Subjeck. To a Fint; What. The Law. Make it.

We have not found a single person who was able to tell what this notice means, and it only serves the purpose of attracting attention and arousing curiosity. The man who placed it on his fence doubtless considered that he was writing good English and that it would be intelligible to all. Someone who has perhaps consulted the author of the notice tell us that the intended meaning is about as follows:

Anybody who leaves these bars or this fence open is subject to a fine—whatever the law makes it.

It is not presumable that anybody will be heavily fined for disobeying the above notice.

A $1 Excursion.

The following telegram was received on Monday afternoon:

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.

Can arrange for $1 rates if we can guarantee three hundred passengers from Bellefonte.

EDMUND BLANCHARD.

The above refers to the Fourth of July excursion to Lewisburg and the rates are so low that at least one thousand passengers can be guaranteed, so consider the excursion an assured success.

—Mr. Ed. Kitzmiller, Arthur Taylor and a small boy, took their tent along with them and spent two days fishing in the vicinity of Marsh Creek. The boy was taken along to guard the tent while the others were away, and did not catch any fish. Ed. Kitzmiller says that the two days angling resulted in a catch of 640 fish. This is certainly a fish story and we give it as we heard it, not having seen or tasted any of the fish.

—The State Constitutional Amendment Association met in annual session in Johnstown to-day, and will continue in session on Wednesday. A large attendance is expected. Col. Bain, of Kentucky, will be one of the prominent advocates of the cause who will be present. He will speak on Wednesday evening. The sessions of the convention will be held in Union Hall. Mr. John Fulton is president of the association.
